Russia Stalls European Aid Parley In Bid for Grip on 'Slave States'

Associated Press Wirephoto

BEFORE THE AVALANCHE—The Mississippi laps at the doors of sandbagged warehouses along the St. Louis riverfront as a tremendous avalanche of water moves toward the city, bringing predictions of the highest crest since 1844. Damage to the four-State area of Missouri, Illinois, Nebraska and Iowa in recent weeks ranged well over $250,000,000. All available soldiers and volunteers have been called in a fight to save weakening levees.

Wants Relief Dealt Without 'Politics'

PARIS, Monday, June 30—(UP)—The official French press agency said today that Big Three negotiations on the Marshall plan for European recovery are deadlocked completely and that Russia is following a procedure which might wreck the conference in her efforts to hold her grip on Eastern Europe.

The statement—long and angry—was a detailed analysis of the suposedly super-secret French-British-Russian conference since its start Friday and apparently it was inspired directly by the French Foreign Office.

"The foreign ministers have arrived at an impasse over which, in any event, they have no more than the weakest chances to reach agreement," the statement said.

The agency — formally the Agence Franchaise de Presse—is operated by the Government, newly purged of its leftist elements, including the Communists.

Its statement was obviously in reply to dispatches of its counterpart, the official Russian news agency Tass, giving the viewpoint which Russian Foreign Minister Molotov had advanced in the "secret" conference.

Quoting "sources close to the French delegation" as its authority, the AFP also quoted "an authorized member of the British delegation as saying:

"We have come to a critical phase. We cannot know what will come of it. The opposition between our point of view and that of the Russians is complete."

One of the big sticking points, AFP intimated, was that Russia wants to know how much she and each country in her sphere would get under the Marshall plan and to be assured that American aid to them would be without any political considerations.

Moscow broadcasts, mostly by Tass in its Paris dispatches, had said that Russia is opposed to any all-embracing European recovery plan because it would infringe the sovereignty of individual states—meaning those in the Russian sphere. Tass said the Big Three alone should start considering the Marshall plan and invite other countries to join them. Germany should be excluded, Tass said, because the Big Four foreign ministers would consider that problem next November. Further, Tass said, the relation of the Marshall plan with the United Nations economic council for Europe should be considered.

The French viewpoint, the AFP said, is:

1. The three foreign ministers must calculate the needs of Eu-

Two 94-Degree Days Due; Sabbath Top 93

A feminine voice answered the phone at the Weather Bureau Sunday night and greeted the sweltering reporter with—

"It's been rather hot today, hasn't it!"

Then she went into Monday's and Tuesday's forecast—"clear to partly cloudy and rather hot."

Monday's prediced high is 94, the low 72. Tuesday's predicted high, 94.

Sunday's high was 93.

UN Body Denounces Holy Land Attacks as Peace Appeal Violation

JERUSALEM, Palestine, June 29—(UP)—The United Nations Palestine Commission Sunday night denounced as a "flagrant violation" of the UN appeal for peace in Palestine a series of Jewish terrorist attacks which have caused 11 British army casualties, four fatal, in 24 hours.

Four British army men were wounded Sunday in Tel Aviv and Haifa in what British army authorities believed to be a new general outbreak of terrorism.

In a third attack, shots were fired from a speeding black sedan at a police station in Jaffa, the Arab city adjoining all-Jewish Tel Aviv.

Rioting, Tear Gas Break Up DeGasperi Meeting

VENICE, Italy, June 29—(AP)—Rioting between Centrists and heckling Leftists broke out during a speech by Premier Alcide de Gasperi here Sunday and police finally quelled the fighting with tear gas.

A police captain, 10 agents and many demonstrators were injured after a Communist-Socialist crowd forced its way into an outdoor mass meeting of 7,000 of De Gasperi's Christian Democratic followers.

UN Action Against Franco Urged

PARIS, June 29—(UP)—Premier Rodolfo Llopis of the Spanish Republican regime in exile, is urging the United Nations to take "quick action" against the government of Generalissimo Francisco Franco in Spain or face loss of prestige.

Llopis charged that seven months after the United Nations voted a period of "reasonable delay" for democratization of the Spanish government none of the conditions it had set had been carried out.

"The UN must act quickly," he said. "It's own prestige is at stake, not to speak of its duty to provide justice for the Spanish people . . ."

Lad, 8, Bent on Rope-Walking Career, Loose Again

CHICAGO, June 29—(AP)—An eight-year-old boy who wants to become a tight-rope walker was on the loose again Sunday night and stretching his parents' patience mighty thin.

Larry Crutchfield, intercepted Saturday at Buffalo, N. Y., after slipping aboard a train here unescorted, eluded his father, Leon Crutchfield, at the LaSalle Street Station this morning and 12 hours later was still missing.

The father surmised Larry might fear punishment for his ramblings.

Crutchfield had wired $15 to Buffalo for Larry's train ticket and went to the railroad station to meet him. The boy slipped away after trainmen handed him over to a Traveler's Aid worker.

At Buffalo, Larry had told a reporter he was on his way to New York City to become a tight-rope walker.

Physicians To Testify on Overell Bodies

SANTA ANA, Cal., June 29—(INS)—The Overell yacht slaying trial, entering its sixth week Monday, faces another day of medical testimony.

Special Prosecutor Eugene D. Williams said the State would call three witnesses to back up its contention that the wealthy Walter E. Overells were dead, beaten to death, before their yacht was sunk with a dynamite charge in Newport Bay the night of last March 16.

The three are Dr. E. L. Benjamin, of San Bernardino; Dr. Charles W. Decker, of Pomona, and Dr. John Ball, of Santa Ana. All three took part in the examination of the Overell bodies after they were exhumed for a second autopsy.

The couple's daughter, Beulah Louise Overell, and her boy friend, George R. Gollum, are on trial in the deaths.

River Dikes Weaken As Crests Near

ST. LOUIS, June 29—(UP)—The greatest Mississippi River flood in this area in 103 years surged over sections of St. Louis and other river towns Sunday and the Army began shuttling all available volunteers to weakened levees in a battle to save homes and farmlands.

Hundreds of civilians, troops, naval reservists, and even women already were sandbagging and patrolling levees along a 150-mile stretch as the mighty river rose to 39.18 feet, the highest since the great flood of 1844.

The river, fed by fresh rains and an avalanche of water pouring into it from the Missouri, north of here, was expected to reach 39.5 feet Monday. The two rivers were expected to crest within 12 hours of each other, the Missouri Monday morning and the Mississippi Monday night.

Army engineers called for all available able-bodied volunteers to help strengthen levees and set up an hourly bus shuttle service from St. Louis and Granite City, Ill., to carry them to "very critical" spots, one north of St. Louis on the Illinois side, the other South of Chester, Ill.

In other sections of the nation, winds of tornadic force and rainstorms lashed sections of six states. Heaviest damage was reported in northern Iowa and at Hopewell, Va.

A furious rainstorm and wind hit a six-block area of Hopewell Saturday night, injuring 10 persons and damaging at least 50 homes.

In Iowa, two persons were electrocuted by power lines blown down by gales. In Dubuque, telephone and power lines snapped in a severe storm. Electric and telephone service was knocked out in sections of the city. At Emmetsburg, Iowa, an 80-foot grain elevator was toppled by the wind.

The Mississippi floodwaters covered approximately 10,000 acres of low lying land in St. Louis County. Additional thousands of acres of surrounding farmland, protected by flood-

Speedboat Amok in Jackson Lake Kills Atlantan After Dumping Him

A runaway speedboat circling wildly with its throttle wide open ran over and killed Homer B. Locke, of Atlanta, in Jackson Lake Sunday while hundreds of horrified spectators watched helplessly from the shore, Butts County Sheriff J. D. Pope reported.

Sheriff Pope said Locke went out in the high-speed inboard motorboat alone at about 1:30 p. m. Sunday. He was thrown into the water while maneuvering a top-speed turn, Pope said.

As several small craft raced to the struggling man the careening pleasure cruiser raced in large circles around them. The crew of one boat succeeded in getting close enough to Locke to heave him a life-saving pillow but as he reached for it the pilotless craft slashed over him, the Sheriff said.

Immediately, the boat returned in a wild circle and cut into a smaller boat occupied by a man and woman. The small craft went instantly to the bottom, forcing the couple to swim ashore.

The speedboat, still hurtling wide open, finally headed for

HER PARENTS' MARRIAGE RECORD

Georgian's Find Sent To Queen Wilhelmina

AUGUSTA, June 29—(AP)—Some 18 months and 6,000 miles after a souvenir-happy GI began kicking around Germany looking for a memento, The Netherlands finally has learned what happened to the marriage record of Queen Wilhelmina's parents.

The GI, name unknown, wandered into the antique shop of Henry Prontaut here, said he didn't have much use for it — couldn't read it, anyhow—and sold it for a trifle.

Prontaut recognized it as something valuable—and put it aside for awhile. Finally he got around to having the handsome velvet-bound, parchment pages translated.

The document recorded the marriage agreement between William III, of the House of Orange and Princess Adelaide Emma Wilhelmina Therese of Waldeck and Pyrmont Dec. 7, 1878.

The Augusta antique dealer immediately took steps to forward the document to Queen Wilhelmina. He sent it to a friend of his stationed in Germany, but in the interim, the friend was killed in an accident. Prontaut got the papers back.

Next he contacted members of The Netherlands' embassy. They verified the authenticity of the document and asked for its return. Prontaut has now forwarded the document to be returned to the Queen.

St. Louis Is Shaken, Quake Suspected

ST. LOUIS, June 29—(UP)—St. Louis was shaken at 10:30 p. m. (CST) Sunday night by what appeared to be a sharp earthquake.

Telephone service was disrupted and hundreds of persons became panicky as buildings throughout the city were shaken.

It was not immediately determined whether it was an earthquake.

Site of Mrs. Reyman's Last Meal Hunted as 2 Men Are Cleared

Atlanta police today are checking all restaurants in the Forrest avenue neighborhood to locate where Mrs. Jeanette Reyman ate lunch several hours before she died, hoping thus to unearth a new lead in their search for her slayer.

They opened the check-up after Dr. Herman Jones, Fulton County toxicologist, reported that about three hours before her death Mrs. Reyman ate a simple plate lunch consisting of beans, carrots and yams. The autopsy showed no sign of alcohol, Dr. Jones said.

By a search of the restaurants in the neighborhood where Mrs. Reyman last was seen, police hope to find the place which served such a plate lunch on Wednesday.

Detectives here concentrated their attention to this inquiry after a clue in Rome petered out. Detective R. E. Little went there to investigate a man for questioning in connection with the case, but he returned late Sunday night and reported the man had "a perfect alibi."

Detective Little took a man able to identify the "short stocky white man" last seen with Mrs. Reyman. This man failed to identify the Rome man as the man wanted.

Rome police held this man for questioning after receiving reports that he claimed to have been a former member of the Atlanta Police Department now engaged in investigating sex crimes for a State agency.

Police also dropped a Madison angle of the case.

There, two Atlanta detectives investigated the case of a man in a hospital recovering from self-inflicted wounds in the wrists. He was reported to fit generally the description of the man sought in the Reyman case, but the detectives found that he had no connection with the crime. He had slashed his wrists, they said, in a fit of despondency.

On their return to Atlanta, the two detectives stopped at Bogart and learned that Mrs. Reyman's neighbors thought highly of her and gave her a first class reputation.

As the police here redoubled their efforts to find a trace of the slayer, the body of Mrs. Reyman, accompanied by her husband, her brother, Charles Van Skyock, and her son, Edwin Poole, II, arrived in Ridgeville, Ind., her home town, for burial. Hundreds of her friends were present to aid in receiving the body.

The body is in state at the home of Mrs. Reyman's aunt, Mrs. Vora Shafer. Funeral services will take place at 3 p. m. today at the Ridgeville Methodist Church and

Girl, Escaping Attacker by Ruse, Shrieks, Jails Him in Taxi Holdup

By HOWELL JONES

Threatened with criminal assault at pistol point, a quick-thinking Atlanta girl Sunday tricked her would-be assailant and brought about his arrest on eight charges for which bonds totaling $14,000 were set, Fulton County and Atlanta police reported.

Lt. Cal Cates, of Fulton County Police, said the youth, identified as Jess Barnett, 20, of 230 Alexander St., N. W., faces charges in the wounding of another Atlanta girl during a taxicab robbery, as well as chares connected with the thwarted attempt at criminal assault, which featured a gun and fist battle.

Confronted by a man menacing her with a gun as she walked toward her home on Berkley Avenue, N. W., Eldora Saylor, 19, feigned compliance with his intention to assault her, Cates said she told him.

Miss Saylor urged the man to "come along" down the street, she related. He complied. When they came in front of the residence of her brother-in-law, Reuben A. Hembree, where she lived, Miss Saylor grabbed the youth's pistol and screamed for help.

The youth snatched the pistol and fled as Hembree ran from the house, gun in hand, to Miss Saylor's rescue.

Hembree and Miss Saylor entered Hembree's automobile to chase the gunman. Four blocks from their residence, a youth attempted to flag a ride with them.

"That's him," cried Miss Saylor. Hembree leaped from the car, gun in hand. He told Cates the youth fired twice at him and he fired twice, none of the shots taking effect. Then he fought the youth with fists.

Aroused by the shots, neighbors rushed to the scene and the gunman ran.

Fulton police came with bloodhounds and found the man they identified as Barnett hiding in high grass a short distance from the fight scene.

Barnett was taken to Grady Hospital for check-up of bruises received in his fight with Hembree, Cates related.

As Barnett entered the emergency room, according to Cates, again there came the cry:

"That's him."

This time it came from Miss Marion Pennell, 17, of 129 Rawson St., S. W., and Miss Evelyn Kersey, 20, of 337 Fourth St., N. W.

Miss Pennell was receiving treatment for a wound received at midnight Saturday when a man held up a taxicab in which she was riding. Miss Kersey also was a passenger in the Yellow Cab, which was driven by Jay Henderson when the holdup occurred on

THOUGHT OF RECENT KILLINGS

Gun in Her Ribs, Girl 'Had To Keep My Head'

By BILL BORING

What do you do when a man pokes a gun into your side, announces his intention of criminally assaulting you, and says that if you resist he'll kill you?

"You keep your head," says brown-eyed, auburn-haired Eldora Saylor, 23, who had that experience Sunday morning.

"But, gee! You're scared to death."

And so Eldora, who works a night trick at Western Union, humored her assailant and when he tried advances, she told him:

"Not here. Let's go down the street. It's darker."

Then for 15 minutes Eldora and the man walked; he holding her hand, so if anybody passed them they'd think the two were girl and boy friend, the man told her. She said he had alighted from a street-car behind her and had ridden in a seat just back of hers.

"That gun!" said Eldora. "Gosh, it's a dreadful, frightening feeling! And I thought of the recent murders in Atlanta and knew that I was facing someone off the beam, so I knew I'd have to keep my head if I came out of it."

He tried a second advance, said Eldora, and Eldora said she again coaxed—"Not here, somebody will surely see us. On down further." And the man agreed, keeping the gun sticking in her ribs.

"I made up my mind pretty quick," said Eldora, "that I had to get that gun. I knew the man meant trouble. I kept walking him and humoring him when he'd want to stop. I wanted to get him in front of my house, then I planned to grab the gun and scream for my brother-in-law."

That's what happened. Eldora made a quick grab for the gun when the two got in front of her house, which was 15 minutes after the man had pulled the gun on her and boldly announced his intentions.

"I grabbed that gun," Eldora said. "Got it by the barrel and screamed, all the time holding the barrel away from me. He tried to pull it down, to point it at my head and shoot, I guess, but I must have had lots of extra strength. I held out until my brother-in-law (Reuben Hembree) came running out."

After it was all over I realized how scared I really was," said Eldora. "Believe me, my boy friend's taking me home nights from now on!"

Atomic War Within 8 Years Feared By Einstein and Bomb Scientists

PRINCETON, N. J., June 29—(UP)—Prof. Albert Einstein and a group of associated scientists said Sunday the United Nations had failed utterly to find a plan for atomic control and warned that a full-fledged atom bomb war might break out within eight years.

The men who helped create the atom bomb and know what makes it tick said the Soviet Union would have the start of a stockpile of bombs by 1955. And they added the cryptic warning:

"Once stockpiles of atomic bombs have been accumulated by two national blocs of a divided world, it will no longer be possible to maintain peace."

Einstein's group is the Emergency Committee of Atomic Scientists of which he is Chairman. Prof. Harold C. Urey, of Chicago University, Vice Chairman, acted as chief spokesman today. The scientists were seated around the white-haired Einstein who continually nodded his agreement with the momentous pronouncements.

The United Nations has failed to find an effective safeguard because each major nation has jockeyed around in negotiations, trying to place itself in "the most advantageous position to win the next war," a statement issued by the Committee said.

Urey said men of science feel the only alternative to another war is creation of a world government with real power to enforce peace.

Thus one year has been spent fruitlessly toward securing a "workable solution to safeguard our civilization," they said.

"Why have the year-long discussions in the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission not succeeded?" the statement asked. "Is this because of incidental and transitory factors which can be remedied by simple measure such as, for instance, the appointment of new personnel to carry on the discussions? The answer is in the negative. The representatives of great states while striving to safeguard the peace, have fulfilled their traditional duty to place their own nations in the most advantageous position to win the next war. It is useless to proceed further along this path; one cannot prepare for war and expect peace."

The scientists said a new approach toward formation of a world government to control atomic energy is necessary if war is to be prevented.

"The American people must take an active part in achieving

REPORT FROM THE COUNTRY

Quick Now, Which County Has...?

By RALPH McGILL

UNKNOWN FARM COUNTY—Out of a sort of necessity, for the sake of emphasis, it seemed best to make of this "Report From the Country" a sort of quiz program, at least in its introduction.

Georgia has 159 counties sprawled about the greatest land area in any State east of the Mississippi. Most of its counties are farm counties in flavor and in culture.

These counties vary in size and farming programs. Some are cotton counties, with large plantations. Others grow tobacco. Many are peanut farming centers. Still others grow grain. Poultry is a specialty of some.

I would like to assemble here certain facts, and ask for a guess as to the identity of the county.

This county stands fourth in the State in the number of farms—a total of 3,324, large and small.

There are 6,000 dairy cows in this particular county, and it is third in the State in the number of dairies.

Seven thousand, five hundred and forty-two pigs and hogs grunt in its pens, and 3,165 horses and mules pull plows and wagons in the fields in this county. More than 350 tractors work in other of its fields.

It is a great poultry county, the fifth largest in the State. An estimated 113,534 laying hens cackle in the hen houses and on the ranges of this county. Almost 1,000,000 broilers—849,551 of them—grow in the broiler houses.

It grows wheat. Of 159 counties, it stands twenty-eighth as a producer of the grain from whence comes the staff of life.

Of 159 counties, it produces more vegetables and truck crops than do 152 other counties.

It produces more cotton than any one of 107 other counties. Its cotton farms average 316 pounds of lint to the acre.

On the basis of that information, how many Georgians can come up with the name of this giant farming county: producer of wheat, corn, oats, barley, cotton . . . high in the leading dairy and beef cattle counties?

The answer is—Fulton County, of which Atlanta is the county seat. It is a great farm county in which the northern half, with many small farms, now has more farms than the southern half, where the scars of abandoned cotton acres remain.

All this explains why, perhaps, it would be unwise to have one government. At least there is an argument. Could one government successfully manage the destinies of a great number of farms, 3,324 of them, growing a great variety of crops, and the largest city in the State, one of the largest in the Southeast?

THE NEW LABOR BILL

NLRB's 'Big Show' To Open August 22

This is the last of six stories highlighting main points in the new labor law.

By HAROLD W. WARD

WASHINGTON, June 29—(AP)—Under the new labor law the Government's Labor Department becomes a runt, mere skin and bones.

The big show in labor-management relations hereafter will be taken over by the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) and its general counsel.

The huge Labor Department has been very important many years, but its most important part has been its conciliation service.

This service moved in on labor disputes and tried to get both sides to settle their quarrel peacefully.

But the new law wipes out the conciliation service. In its place it establishes a new agency, the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

Its job will be the same as the old conciliation service, but the new one will be altogether separate from the Labor Department.

So the Labor Department, under Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach, becomes not much more than an agency for gathering labor statistics, such as wages, hours and numbers of people employed.

Until 1935, when Congress passed this country's first big labor law, the Wagner Act, the Labor Department was Mr. Big in labor relations.

But, to carry out the Wagner Act, Congress established an agency called the National Labor Relations Board, a three-man Board.

This Board investigated violations of the Wagner Act, prosecuted them, and acted as judge and jury. It had a top lawyer, called a General Counsel, but he was hardly more than a servant of the Board.

So, since 1935, more and more the NLRB became the very important Government agency in dealing with labor disputes while the Labor Department faded a bit into the background. And during the war, both the Department and the NLRB took a back seat as the War Labor Board rose to dominance in the labor-management field. The WLB now has passed out of existence.

The new law, changing the Wagner Act in many ways, keeps the NLRB but makes it bigger. Now it will be a five-man Board, and it will have its hands full with the new law, which is very complicated.

And, the more management and labor turn to the NLRB to settle their problems, the less they need help from the Labor Department.

And with the Department's loss of the Conciliation Service, they'll need less help than ever.

But the new law, while making the NLRB itself bigger, has taken some of its powers away. The General Counsel now becomes hugely important and this is why:

1. The Board itself will continue to act as judge on labor disputes.

2. But the General Counsel no longer is its servant. He can act fairly independently of the Board. He'll decide whether to prosecute a Union or employer before the Board. His word is final. There's no appeal.

Some Union people say they fear this General Counsel will become the big boss of labor-management relations. Congressmen who pushed the new law through say they see no reason for such fear.

President Truman and Schwellenbach had hoped to build the Labor Department into a tightly-knit, powerful arm of the Government. That hope is shattered now.

Schwellenbach already has had to fire 1,900 of his 6,500 employees.

His Department will have nothing left for certain but the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the Wage and Hour Division, the Women's Bureau, and an agency called the Apprentice Service Training.

But Congress has cut down sharply on the money these few branches of the Labor Department can have to keep running another year.

Labor disputes of the next 60 days are the job of Schwellenbach's Conciliation Service.

That Service stays in existence until Aug. 22—which will be 60 days after the law was passed, June 23—and then will be succeeded by the new Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The enlarged Labor Board and the new General Counsel won't take over until Aug. 22.

The old NLRB—which the enlarged one succeeds in August—still has about 5,500 unsettled labor disputes on its hands. Can it clear them all by Aug. 22?

Probably not. It hopes that some of the Unions and employers involved in those piled-up disputes will withdraw them.

Some of them may want to do this in order to change them a bit, and present them to the new Board in August.

Macon Installs Naval Equipment In Electronics

The first large installation of equipment for the Naval Reserve's program of electronics warfare training in three Southeastern states has been put in operation at Macon, the Sixth Naval District Headquarters in Charleston revealed Sunday.

Valued at more than $500,000, the equipment in the Macon armory includes several radio and radar transmitters of various frequencies, portable fathometer, radar console, radar indicator and banks of receivers comparable to battleship installations.

Other armories in Georgia which will have similar installations will be those now located and to be located at Savannah, Atlanta, Columbus and Augusta, the Naval District reported.

Capt. H. C. Daniel, USN Director of the Naval Reserve in this District, has announced that the program involving 2,600 officers and men will include establishment of 20 electronic warfare companies and 125 volunteer platoons in 155 towns and cities in Georgia and the Carolinas.

Personnel is now the principal need in this stage of the program, Capt. Daniel said. Former Navy men and volunteers may apply through their nearest Naval recruiting activity. Electronics companies' enlisted personnel will comprise sonarmen, radarmen, signalmen, seamen and yeomen, he reported.

AN ECHO FROM HISTORY . . .

Kennesaw Rings Again as Story Of Blue and Gray Valor Is Retold

By BILL BORING

KENNESAW MOUNTAIN NATIONAL PARK, June 29—You could hear the roar of the artillery here Sunday, the crackle of the musketry and shrieks of men falling in battle.

From this eminence you could look out over a piece of Georgia which Gen. Sherman failed to march through and see the Blue and the Gray arrayed in one of history's greatest single battles.

You could hear the groans of the dying, smell the stench of men's bodies rotting in the sun. Hot blood flowing . . . eyes and ears bleeding from concussion . . . struggling from sunstroke, nausea . . . the dead lying 12 deep.

It was a shocking sight, said the men who told today of the Battle of Kennesaw Mountain, in which 83 years ago the forces of Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, 50,000 strong, turned back Gen. Sherman's 100,000.

"It was one fight," Gen. Sherman said in his memoirs, "that I regret ever having undertaken."

And so they observed the eighty-third anniversary of that battle here Sunday. The speakers—Stanley F. Horn, of Nashville, Tenn., an author, and Wilbur Kurtz, Atlanta historian—vividly pictured in words the awful bloodiness of the battle. They told of the heroism of both sides.

Listening in the audience was Gen. J. F. Howell, 100-year-old Rebel soldier of Gen. Lee's Northern Virginia Army. He made the long trip down, he said, in honor of the widow of "that illustrious old soldier, Gen. James Longstreet." Mrs. Longstreet sat at Gen. Howell's right.

Still another distinguished visitor was a little old white-haired lady, Mrs. W. A. Peyton, of Illinois, who came down in memory of the hundreds of sons of Illinois who lost their lives in the futile attempt to storm the Kennesaw battlements. On the spot is a Georgia marble monument to these Yankee dead.

A feature of the observance was the presentation of the blouse of Maj. Gen. Samuel G. French, who was one of the Confederate leaders in the battle, to the museum of the park. Miss Jeanne Brown, of Marietta, presented the blouse on behalf of R. A. French, its donor and a son of the late General.

Round-World Fliers Land on West Coast

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29—(AP) Pan-American Airway's Clipper plane, the America, landed at San Francisco Airport at 12:44 p. m. (Pacific Standard Time) Sunday on the next to last leg of the airline's inaugural round-the-world passenger service.

The plane, carrying a party of American newspaper editors and publishers and civic officials, left New York June 17. An overnight stop will be made here. The plane will continue to New York Monday.

Flying time from Honolulu to San Francisco was 10 hours, five minutes.

Let's See Now...

Henry B. Kennedy has a theory. He believes that sucess comes only to men who choose a business they like and stick to it. Last week Kennedy proved his theory. He closed his fiftieth year at a business he liked when he was 17.

Kennedy is Executive Vice President of Fulton National Bank. He joined the organization when the bank opened in 1910, leaving the old Atlanta National Bank, which occupied the site of the present First National Bank. He had joined the Atlanta National as a runner, in the days when there was but one adding machine in the institution, and messengers were sent everywhere in the city, entrusted with thousands of dollars, with complete safety.

"So many things have changed," Kennedy said Saturday. "There once were no women in banks, and few women customers. Now we couldn't get along without them . . . inside or outside the bank."

Women have a great deal to do with Kennedy's judgment on credit risks. A bachelor, the handsome banker has observed, "If a man is pretty happy at home, he will be good credit. A team works far better than an individual."

If you see a striking blonde strolling around Atlanta this week wearing a beady-eyed Pekingese pooch in a basket on her arm like a handbag, it'll be Norma Terris, star of this week's Moonlight Opera production, "Bittersweet."

The object in the basket is Cuddles. Cuddles is a caution. He is aged, infirm, and has a mind of his own. One of his little whims is that he intends to stay within earshot of Miss Terris. When the singer flew to California a few weeks ago, she left him at home in New York. Cuddles struck, in a Mahatma Ghandi kind of way. He wouldn't eat. Finally, fearing he would die, Miss Terris' husband, Dr. Joseph Wagner, a surgeon, boarded a train for the West Coast, to deliver Cuddles to the singer.

A few days later, Miss Terris flew to Chicago to fill an engagement. Dr. Wagner followed with Cuddles (which refuses to fly in the baggage compartment). There he turned the dog over to her and told her to solve her dog transportation problem herself. Cuddles shared her stateroom from Chicago to Atlanta.

The operetta company has another slight pet problem. Madeline Killeen, a mellowed actress who played Broadway with Barrymore (John), is serving here as assistant stage director, and she is accompanied by a sparrow.

It is a run-of-the-mine bird she nursed back to health a year or so ago, and it is so grateful it won't let her out of sight. It flies into a rage when she leaves it alone in her hotel room, dashes itself against draperies, walls, pictures, chirping in shrill anger. Miss Killeen has solved her problem by wearing the bird on her arm.

Mark Wooding gets an idea quickly. Last week, after State employees complained that they had no place to eat, Wooding decided to settle their problem. He chartered a Power Company bus to tour the State-County-City Hall circuit at high noon, deliver the payrollees to his downtown cafeteria, shuttle them back to their work on time.

The first day, riders were dubious about the transportation tickets. By the end of the third, they understood to buy a 25c ride, good as a partial payment on their luncheon, and hold on to it, cancelled, as their return token. It began to look as easy as bringing a lunch from home.

Tornado Razes 6 City Blocks In Virginia

HOPEWELL, Va., June 29—(AP) A tornado that dipped into Hopewell out of rain-laden skies left a six-square-block sector of this southside Virginia City a shambles Sunday.

About 100 buildings were unroofed or otherwise damaged, large trees were snapped like twigs and 10 persons were hurt—none seriousy—by winds which some estimated blew at 75 to 100 miles an hour for a two-minute period.

"The trees looked like some giant had taken hold of them and twisted them like a handful of leaf tobacco," said Capt. A. S. J. Wheeler, the City Sergeant, whose job is equivalent to that of a county sheriff.

Wheeler said damage would probably run to $100,000 and the business of cleaning up the debris would take a week or 10 days.

The brief storm, accompanied by torrential rains, hit Hopewell shortly after 2 p. m., knocked out telephone and electric service and left residents virtually isolated for nearly nine hours.

U. S. and Canada Plan Further Polar Maneuvers

WASHINGTON, June 29—(UP) The United States and Canada soon will announce plans for joint Arctic maneuvers next Winter to continue preparations against the possibility of trans-polar attack, an informed War Department source said Sunday.

The announcement will be made by the permanent joint board of defense of the United States and Canada which has been building up close military laison since the war.

The two nations already have engaged in extensive military and diplomatic co-operation and President Truman pledged even closer relations in his recent speech at Ottawa.

Snice the joint defense plan was begun, the United States has sold the Canadians vast quantities of combat material at a nominal fee. For example, equipment that cost $22,695,490 originally, was turned over to the Canadians for $1,022,519.

This included B-29 superfortresses, tanks, artillery, transportation and communications equipment and hospital supplies.

High Grain Cost Blamed on CCC's Export Buying

WASHINGTON, June 29—(UP) The National Association of Commodity Exchanges and Allied Trades, Inc., Sunday placed the blame for current high prices of corn and other grains on the Government's practice of buying huge quantities for export.

It said that prices will remain high, and perhaps go higher, as long as the "domestic bin is scraped" for export, and charged that much of the "current chaos" over corn prices can be traced to "the inept buying by inexperienced officials of the Commodity Credit Corporation."

The charges were made by J. A. Higgons, Jr., Executive Vice President of the Association, in letters to Sen. Robert A. Taft, Republican, Ohio, and Rep. Jesse P. Wolcott, Republican, Michigan, Chairman and Vice Chairman respectively of the Joint Congressional Committee on President Truman's Economic Report.

REPORTED FROM CANADA TO TEXAS

Fast Flying 'Saucers' Excite Western Gazers

PORTLAND, Ore., June 29—(AP)—Westerners were seeing "flying saucers" almost everywhere Sunday—from Canada to Texas—and a red-hot controversy raged about it all.

Kenneth Arnold, Boise, Idaho, flying businessman, started it by reporting he saw nine mystery objects zipping over Western Washington last Tuesday at what he estimated was 1,200-mile-an-hour speed.

Experts dismissed his report with statements that no known aircraft could go that fast and that no guided missile tests were being made in that part of the West.

Hardly were the words out of their mouths when others began reporting "flying saucers" and the controversy was on.

There was a similarity in all reports—the objects were found like saucers, traveling south at a high rate of speed with little or no noise, and of such brightness that reflections from the sun were "almost blinding."

Three persons in El Paso, Texas, said they had seen them recently, as did two persons in Vancouver, B. C. The latest of a score of reports in the Pacific Northwest came from a Seaside, Ore., woman, who said she saw one before sunset Saturday night.

There were two popular theories—that the objects were experimental airplanes or guided missiles to which the armed forces will not admit, or that they were guided missiles from foreign soil.

A spokesman for the Army expressed interest in anything that could go 1,200 miles an hour, but no responsible official or air expert came to the defense of the theories or of the theories behind reports. Some suggested that perhaps imagination had become the better part of sight.

FDR Peace Tower Should Stand As 'Altar of Liberty,' Allen Says

By ALBERT RILEY

Pointing out that there is no need for hurry in carrying out the project, Ivan Allen, Sr., Chairman of the Roosevelt Warm Springs Memorial Commission, says he believes "some time next year" will be a good time to start raising funds to build a Franklin D. Roosevelt Peace Tower, "higher than the Washington Monument," on Dowdell's Knob atop Pine Mountain.

Allen's proposal to build such a tower was first made last Wednesday at the dedication of the Little White House at Warm Springs.

He envisions contributions from all 48 States and many foreign countries to build a tower which would house non-commercial radio and television stations, chimes, elevators, a museum, restaurant, rest rooms and other facilities.

It would be "an international shrine, a sanctuary of glory, an altar of liberty," he said in his Warm Springs speech; and as a memorial to the late President Roosevelt it would be a "Voice of Peace" to "light the pathways of the generations to come."

In his Atlanta office, Allen said: "I am not a careless dreamer. When I dream, I do so with pencil and blueprint. This Peace Tower may sound owfully big, even miraculous, but I think it is a more sensible idea than most people think."

Allen, longtime friend and admirer of Roosevelt, says that from a practical viewpoint two questions immediately are raised about the Peace Tower proposal. One is its usefulness, he says, and the other is how to get the money to build it.

It could be used as a radio and television transmitter, he says, and it could be made into the biggest tourist attraction in Georgia. In that respect alone it could be made to pay for itself, Allen declared as he pointed out that thousands of people visiting the Washington Mounment daily for years and paying for the privilege have paid many times over the cost of its construction.

In urging a tower higher than the Washington Monument, Allen points out that Dowdell's Knob, on which the tower would be built, is 1,300 feet high itself.

Looking to the future of television, Allen foresees the tower as connecting up eventually with a television station atop Kennesaw Mountain and other such stations to the north, which would tie in with television facilities already built between Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Boston.

The Atlantan envisions the Roosevelt Peace Tower as much larger, more modern and more beautiful than famous Bok Tower in Florida.

As for raising money, Allen is an old hand at that game. He headed up a drive in 1926 which raised $1,000,000 simply to advertise Atlanta to the world, a drive which resulted in many national concerns establishing branch offices here.

"I know how hard it is to raise money, and yet how easy," he said. "Everything depends on the appeal."

Allen believes the millions of Americans who loved and admired Roosevelt and four times sent him to the White House will be glad to have a part in such a magnificent memorial to the late President.

Furthermore, he believes that as the years go by Roosevelt's memory will be revered even more, and he will eventually come to be regarded as the greatest President in U. S. history.

Allen would turn the nation-wide fund raising campaign over to some agency experienced in such matters, with quotas established for each State.

"There would be no trouble in raising $300,000 in New York State alone," he said.

Foreign diplomats at Warm Springs for the Little White House dedication came to him that night at Acting Gov. Thompson's buffet supper at the Capitol City Club, and told Allen: "My country wants to have a part in this, for my people loved your great President Roosevelt."

It wouldn't be much trouble to raise between one and two million dollars for the project, Allen believes, and he favors limiting contributions to a range between one dollar and a maximum of $1,000 per contributor.

He has already had one man offer $1,000, he says, and has received small checks and messages of support.

Allen's idea has not reached the architectural drawing stage. In fact, rather than turn the job of designing the tower over to one man, he favors turning it over to a committee of the American Institute of Architects so they can jointly design the tower as their contribution to the memorial.

It's a grand vision Allen has, and he doesn't believe it impractical.

"It'll be done, whether I do it or not," he said "It is an idea that cannot die."

HIGH ATOP DOWDELL'S KNOB—Here is an artist's conception of a distant view of the proposed Franklin D. Roosevelt Peace Tower as it would appear on Dowdell's Knob, 1,300-foot eminence of Pine Mountain near Warm Springs. The photograph was taken from the scenic highway atop the connecting main ridge of the mountain. In the foreground and to the left, looking toward Shiloh beyond Dowdell's Knob, is a 50-mile sweep of valley. Viewed from the Knob it was a vista the late President often enjoyed. The day before he died he sat alone for two hours looking out over the peaceful scene.

Bishop Moore Appoints 300 Methodist Pastors

BRUNSWICK, June 29—(AP)—Bishop Arthur J. Moore closed the eighty-second annual conference of the Methodist Church in South Georgia Sunday with the appointment of approximately 300 regular and supply pastors.

Before reading the appointments in the Memorial Auditorium of Glynn Academy, Bishop Moore preached on "Fighting the Battles of Peace."

More sanity and courage are sometimes required for peace than for war, the Bishop declared.

"Victory in war within itself is not sufficient to restore peace and prosperity to the nations," he said.

"We should realize that there is danger confronting us today in the hasty adoption of immature and ill-considered plans for the remaking of the world.

"There are battles to be fought in times of peace and they sometimes require more sanity and courage than the battles of war," Bishop Moore declared.

Boy Scouts on Air Program Year Old

"The Road to Adventure," the radio voice of the Atlanta Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America, commemorates its first year of broadcasting tonight at 9:30 over Radio Station WAGA.

The program was inaugurated in June 1946. Scouter Conrad J. Brabson produces and directs the show. William L. Brady, Chairman of the Public Relations Committee, Executive Board, and M. M. Rolleston, radio subcommittee chairman, supervise the programs. W. C. Harris, Council President, and Weaver Marr, Council Executive, will have parts on the program Monday night as will Cub Pack 64, sponsored by the Home Park P.-T. A.

"We believe the program has been a direct influence in interesting boys and their parents in the benefits which Scouting has to offer the teen-age boy of today," said Brabson.

29,000 More Germans Released by Russians

BERLIN, June 29 — (AP) — The Russian-controlled Tagliche Rundschau reports that 29,000 German prisoners were repatriated from the Soviet zone in June for a new monthly record and asserted that the percentage of sick and disabled among the returning prisoners was declining.

The paper said that the June repatriations brought to 83,315 the number of Germans released since last January.

Tax Slash Try-Agains Insist On Community Property Item

WASHINGTON, June 29—(AP)—A coalition move to revive the vetoed Tax Reduction Bill hit a snag Sunday when Sen. McClellan, Democrat, Arkansas, announced he and others will insist on attaching a community property amendment.

McClellan told a reporter he and at least three other Democratic Senators will refuse to go along with any reduction bill that does not carry authority for husbands and wives to divide their income for tax purposes.

Such a group apparently would hold the balance in overriding or sustaining a Presidential veto, if one comes.

A move to attach the community property clause in the Senate apparently would defeat any plan for quick passage by both Houses of the measure taking a $4,000,000,000 slice out of individual income taxes. Supporters propose to revise it to make it effective next Jan. 1 instead of next Tuesday as was provided in the original, vetoed tax cut bill.

It also might open the way for various other proposed amendments, such as those increasing the personal exemption allowances, bringing about extended debate.

Community property laws, effective in 10 States and upheld in Federal courts, permit many couples to pay less to the Federal Government by splitting their income and taking advantage of lower rates.

"I'm certainly not going to vote for any future tax bill that don't wipe out this inequity on the taxpayers of the other states," the Askansas Senator said. "We have been promised this relief long enough and we are going to get it on the next bill."

Polls indicate that sufficient votes are available in the House to override a possible Presidential veto. While the President's action on a Jan. 1 reduction is uncertain, many in Congress feel that attachment of the community property proposal at this time would make such a veto more certain since it would subtract $800,000,000 yearly from potential revenues.

Appropriations Log-Jam Threatened in Congress

WASHINGTON, June 29—(AP)—Congress came up to the end of the Government's fiscal year Sunday facing one of the worst appropriations log-jams in history.

The fiscal year ends at midnight Monday, and unless there is an unprecedented burst of legislative speed in the meantime, only one of the regular appropriation bills for the year beginning Tuesday will be on the law books. It finances the Treasury and Post Office Departments, and now is on President Truman's desk.

But despite its failure to appropriate for other agencies in time for them to have their money available when the new year starts, Congress has provided for their normal operations.

Already law is a provision allowing unfinanced departments to incur obligations in anticipation of pending appropriations. This means that the departments may carry on their normal activities and charge the expense against appropriations yet to be made.

WHEELS OF TIME JUST WON'T STOP

Passers-by in College Park looked once, then quickly took a second, long look. It was the famous "horseless carriage," which they had often heard of, but never seen.

It was chugging down the "main stem" at a comfortable speed of 30 miles an hour and at the wheel sat a sun-tanned Pennsylvanian, A. J. Ruth, of York, who said the vehicle had been in his family since the day, 45 years ago, his uncle purchased it. And it has been running ever since.

Ruth himself said he has put more than 100,000 miles on the car, a 1902, two-cylinder, solid-tired, Sears-Roebuck Autocar that looks like a buggy without the horse.

Ruth said he is en route to California. "Traveling leisurely, naturally," he said.

FLOOD

weakened levees, were threatened.

In St. Louis thousands of residents walked or drove to the eastern edge of the city to view the flood.

The scene lacked much of the drama usually associated with floods, and most people appeared to be taking things calmly.

An estimated 30,000 persons were homeless in Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and Illinois as a result of floods which in recent weeks have caused approximately $250,000,000 damage. The total number of homeless dropped Sunday from a high of 35,000 as residents in flood-ravaged Iowa towns began returning to their homes.

Adding to the suffering of the homeless and problems of levee workers, wind and rain lashed the southern Illinois-eastern Missouri area during the night. All dikes and levees were holding, but water was lapping over or seeping through many of them.

Gales that reached a velocity of 83 miles per hour north of Chicago, swept across Southwestern Wisconsin, Northeastern Indiana, Northern Illinois and sections of Iowa.

Heavy rains caused flash floods in Southeastern Kentucky Saturday night. Six highways were reported under water or blocked by landslides. Flood water of the Cumberland River covered sections of the Pineville, Ky., business district and train service from Pineville to Corbin, Ky., was cancelled.

A one and one-half-inch rain fell in the Missouri and Mississippi Valleys during the night. Wind whipped up whitecaps on the Mississippi and sent muddy floodwaters over the tops of levees.

Engineers reported that the dikes at Chouteau Island, north of St. Louis, the Degognia levee south of Chester, Ill., and the levee at Dupo, Ill., were holding.

All residents had been ordered to evacuate an area protected by the Degognia levee. The district includes 50,000 acres of farmland.

Water was seeping beneath the levee protecting Grand Tower, Ill., and water was knee-deep in the city streets. Water also covered parts of Dupo, Ill., and the Missouri Pacific Railroad's main freight yards, protected by the Dupo levee.

AID PLAN

rope as a whole, not those of individual States.

2. Germany's over-all needs should be considered in the calculation but there should be no attempt to break down her needs into those of different German regions—evidently the four occupation zones.

3. Political considerations, such as discussion of United States sincerity in proposing the Marshall plan, should be strictly avoided.

AFP reported that Molotov began by "favoring a procedure which would calculate the needs of the individual nations of Europe"—obviously including those of Russia and the countries in her sphere.

Molotov did this, AFP said, "with the specific object of getting an assurance that the Marshall plan had no political strings." In this connection, it was added, Molotov pointed to the "incompatibility" between the Marshall plan and the fundamental policy of the Truman doctrine.

The Truman doctrine, according to the Molotov viewpoint as outlined by AFP, establishes discrimination between "free and democratic" countries and those in the Russian orbit.

AFP issued its statement after diplomatic circles had said that British Foreign Secretary Bevin is ready to present Russia an ultimative demand for a yes or no answer on its willingness to get to work on the Marshall plan for European recovery.

GUNMAN

Fourteenth Street, N. W., according to City Police reports.

Miss Pennell was shot in the right toe when the holdup man's gun discharged as he rummaged through the young women's purses after relieving the cab driver of between $15 and $20, she told police. The holdup man had hailed the cab, and pulled the gun after entering the front seat. He fled afterward.

Lt. Cates said Barnett admitted the holdup of the cab, and said the shot was accidental.

The charges made against Barnet are: armed robbery; assault with intent to murder; attempted criminal assault; assault and battery; shooting another; pointing a pistol at another, and carrying concealed weapons.

REYMAN

burial will be at Ridgeville.

In Atlanta, Supt. Hilderbrand remained hopeful of an early solution of the crime.

"But as yet, we have no clues that might give us material aid in getting to the bottom of this mystery," he said.

He then appealed to the public to aid in finding the slaying scene.

"If any persons locates the scene, he should notify us immediately," said Hilderbrand.

The main efforts of the police, said Hilderbrand, still centers around the area where the police found the truck containing Mrs. Reyman's body. The truck was parked on Moreland avenue, between Flat Shoals Avenue and Memorial Drive, S. E.

The police also are still searching Forrest Road section in the vicinity of the city dump.

The search, Hilderbrand explained, still revolves around a number of missing articles which belonged to the dead woman—a two-toned blue and white purse, a silk stocking and a pair of tan and white shoes.

"If we find any one of these articles," he continued, "we will be on a valuable trail."

The police have made plaster casts of tire tracks found in some areas they have searched. But Hilderbrand said he had not yet compared these casts with the tires on the "murder" truck.

Hilderbrand said he continues to receive numerous calls from citizens who say they remember seeing a man answering to the description of the one last seen with Mrs. Reyman. One call was from a young woman who said she saw such a man on Ponce de Leon Avenue early in the afternoon of the day of the slaying.

3 Slayings, 2 Stabbings Top Crime's Weekend

Atlanta police Sunday had in their reports a third Negro slaying for the weekend, plus a shooting, two stabbings and a person hit on the head with a brick.

The slain Negro was Dewey Ellis, Jr., 22, of 274 Payne Ave., N. W. Police found him stabbed in the neck at Mildred and Fair streets, N. W. He died while en route to Grady Hospital. Two other slayings were reported Saturday.

One stabbing, police said, originated in a piece of horseplay as two young Negroes were washing an automobile at 369 Forrest Ave., N. E. They were Marion Johnson, 19, of 847 Mitchell St., S. W., and James Newman, 16, of 287 Forrest St., N. E.

While they were washing the automobile, police reported, Johnson turned the hose on Newman. In return, Newman, according to the report, stabbed Johnson and fled. Police said he still had not been found.

F. M. Crosby, Noted Industrialist, Dies

MINNEAPOLIS, June 29—(AP)—Franklin M. Crosby, 72, Minneapolis Industrialist and milling executive, died Sunday night of a heart ailment after a long illness.

Crosby, a member of the famous Crosby milling family, was a Director and Vice President of General Mills, Inc., flour manufacturers.

He had also been a Director since 1897 of the parent firm, the Washburn Crosby Milling Company, until it was superceded by General Mills.

5 Fishermen Rescued After 6 Weeks On Island

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 29—(AP)—Five shipwrecked fishermen, their clothing in rags and their bodies blackened by tropical sun, were reported in "fair condition" Sunday after nearly six weeks on a tiny Pacific island off the coast of Mexico.

First word of the five men, missing with the fishing boat "Thistle" since May 19, was received last night when a radio message from another boat asked the Coast Guard and Navy for aid.

The tuna clipper "Normandie" of San Diego sent the message, saying it was standing by off the five-square mile Clipperton Island, 1,700 miles south of here and 500 miles off the coast of Mexico.

The Navy planned to send a craft there from Panama.

Fishermen here said the wrecked boat was from San Pedro, fishing for the California Marine Curing and Packing Company.

The "Normandie," one of the largest of San Diego's tuna clippers, radioed that the "Thistle" had broken up on the desolate island but that none of the crew was hurt.

Fishermen here expressed belief the boat was driven ashore by a "Chubasco" storm, which they said was a "cyclone at sea" apt to strike any time from across the Gulf of Tehuantepec.

shore, jumped a two-foot concrete wall and beached itself.

Sheriff Pope recovered Locke's body from the 75-foot deep lake 45 minutes later, he said. He deducted from the severe lacerations on head and arms that Locke had been killed almost instantly.

Relatives said Locke, owner of the H. B. Locke Company, contractors, had gone to the lake with business acquaintances for the weekend. Sheriff Pope identified the boat as one belonging to Johnny Scarratt, owner of the Scarratt Garage, Inc., at 588 Spring St., N. W.

Locke is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. G. T. Umbauer, Jr., and Miss Jacqueline Locke, both of Atlanta, and a grandchild. He lives at 302 Monument Ave., S. E.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by J. Austin Dillon Company.

Emanuel Youth Drowns While in Private Pond

SWAINSBORO, June 29—(AP)—Estus Eugene Faircloth, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Faircloth, of Emanuel County, drowned early Sunday in a private pond near here.

Young Faircloth, an only child, was a native and lifelong resident of Emanuel County. Funeral rites will be held at 3 p. m. Tuesday in Coleman chapel near Wadley.

such a world settlement," the Committee said, "and must be prepared to mobilize vast resources on an adequate scale to help the peoples of the world lift the levels of their economic life.

"The American people should understand that there is no easy path to the accomplishment of these great objectives; that in the long run, the creation of a supranational government, with powers adequate to the responsibility of maintaining the peace, is necessary."

Urey, who was one of this country's most active scientists in the construction of the atomic bomb, said he believed the Russians would be able to have a stockpile within eight years. Einstein broke into the conversation to say that the time element "is not so important," that what was important was "what are we going to do about it in the meantime to prevent war."

Urey also said he did not believe an atomic war would be over in a matter of hours, such as has been suggested by some scientists.

"Wars usually last longer than the time predicted by those who start wars," he said.

What Makes Foreign Policy Work?

Apparent lack of success of the European conference to determine Europe's rehabilitation needs on a European basis as opposed to needs of individual countries, brings home again a simple but tremendously vital fact:

No foreign policy will work in any country unless it has a domestic policy which also works.

We have had, largely because of the statesmanship of Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, a bi-partisan foreign policy. But now, with a Republican Congress in control, we are faced with the danger of a domestic policy which is inclined to wander off on its own lonesome road.

Secretary of State Marshall is a military man and a great one. But he learned much, as Chief of Staff, that no other military man has had a chance to learn—the great lesson of world economics.

By learning, the hard way, of what had to be done to feed the American soldier in the Pacific Islands, in Europe, in Iran, Egypt and in other far-flung outposts, he learned what other nations had and needed.

He is attempting to bring about the reconstruction of Europe as an economic area and to do so without political interference from us or the Soviets.

It is the finest example of statesmanship the world has seen since the war.

It also is critically important in that its failure may tear down our own civilization. If so, that of the Soviets surely will be badly broken or torn down, too. Yet, it appears that the Soviet policy is the old policy of delay and stagnation.

It is possible for the policy to succeed without the Soviets.

But, it can succeed only if this country goes well internally. If we do not continue enormous production to support our policy in Europe, the policy cannot succeed. If we do not have harmonious industrial relations it will fail.

We need now, despite the wounds, enough realization from John L. Lewis, Phil Murray, William Green and the National Association of Manufacturers that the best possible reconciliation is required to save this country and Europe. If we do not help it to save itself, we will not be able to save ourselves in the long run.

That is not, we believe, an overstatement.

A Case of Sound Judgment

While The Constitution is convinced a State Park at Jekyll Island would be a real asset, especially as the State's population grows, there can be no question but that the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Retirement System acted wisely in refusing to sink their funds in the venture.

The purchase of Jekyll Island for a State Park now has become a political issue and it would not make sense for the Teachers' Retirement Fund to finance a project that shows every indication of getting kicked around in a political melee, including the 1948 primary campaign.

While a park on the island would prove its worth in the future as our industrialization continues and more adequate seaside recreation facilities are needed, we earnestly urge that a factual analysis be made of all possibilities before commitments are entered into. Let us have all the facts—and then let us have expressions from the people.

If the facts prove the venture as practicable as we have been led to believe, the State will have no difficulty financing it, even at a time when every cent of tax money is needed for normal operations. The trustees of the Teachers' Retirement Fund, however, showed good judgment in their refusal.

Greed of the Few

This is about sugar, but it is not a sweet story.

Cuba is making an appeal for this country to buy more sugar and this appeal offers a fine illustration of how the people of this country have their pockets picked by unreasonable tariffs.

Cuba produces only tobacco and sugar for export.

Sixty percent of all the people in Cuba work in sugar production.

Last year Cuba imported from the United States $272,000,000 in automobiles, radio sets, electrical goods, cooking utensils, machinery, cloth, construction materials, rice, lard, wheat, flour, canned goods and so on.

This meant that Americans had jobs in all the industries doing such business and producing such goods. It meant that farmers who grew what went into the cans had an outlet. Dock workers, seamen and makers of shipping boxes had more work.

During the war Cuba alone could send us sugar. She now sends us more than half our total consumption of sugar. In ads placed in American newspapers, Cuba is asking for a quota of half our total imports.

The American beet sugar growers, who want the American people to spend millions of dollars to protect them in a non-essential industry, will fight the Cubans. A few hundred beet sugar growers, who could grow other crops, want the American people to pay high prices for sugar through a tariff, or law, which will keep out cheap Cuban sugar, which is better than beet sugar, anyhow.

They support the traditional Republican program which cries out against "foreign goods." We tried that after the first World War with the Smoot-Hawley bill. It reduced Cuban purchases to a few millions, instead of many millions. It cut off markets all over the world and helped bring on depression and war.

Let's write our Congressmen about this.

Let's let the Cubans live—and buy from us to keep our own factories going. They count more than a few hundred sugar beet growers who could do something else. The welfare of millions is above the greed of a few.

The Constitution welcomes letters on either side of any subject. They should not exceed 200 words and must be signed, although names will be withheld on request. We regret none can be returned.

Attacks George

Editor Constitution: How can any sane Southerner go up to Washington, take his seat in the Senate of the United States and vote for the Taft-Hartley Labor Bill, then vote to override the great President of our country, when he knows it puts Georgia men and women under the heel of Northern industrialists and Republicans, all backed by the National Association of Manufacturers. Had we only listened to Franklin Roosevelt and purged the "distinguished" Walter George from the Senate I am sure Georgia would be much better off today. George has influence in Washington, sure, but it doesn't help Georgians, it helps the NAM and the Republicans.

'Lespedeza King'

Editor Constitution: I have read your letters of several farmers you have visited in Hart County, how they have built up the soil and prospered. I am an old man, but it does me good to read such letters. Three years ago you had Mrs. Carolyn Carter and Mr. Slayton come to my farm, near Gay, and put a write-up in The Constitution of my farming. Mrs. Carter headed the letter: "The Lespedeza King." I am a retired railroad man, only been here on this farm 10 years. I began sowing lespedeza the first year. I have several hundred acres in lespedeza and clover now. I would like for you to come down some day and see my farm. L. A. CALDWELL.

Valuable Series

Editor Constitution: The series of articles which you have been writing for The Constitution in regard to the farm conditions in Georgia have been read with great interest by me. ## Powerful Argument

Editor Constitution: I want to congratulate you and to thank you as well, for the editorial with regard to the proposed FEPC law. You have covered the grounds fully and have not been forced to make a whole lot of examples that would be a powerful argument against the law.

Samoa's Plight

Editor Constitution: Harold Martin, in his column in The Constitution, reveals some facts little known, but which place a shameful stigma upon American manhood. These facts should not be ignored or forgotten. An estimated 500 to 2,000 half-white Samoan children, fathered by American soldiers is not something to pass over lightly or to ignore.

These facts certainly do not speak well of American manhood!

These men should not be allowed to escape the penalty of their crime to humanity. The support and future of these children should not be left to the Samoan people, but should be placed where it rightfully belongs — squarely upon the shoulders of their fathers. In this way, these men may be taught that life and decency are not to be so foolishly and loosely trifled with.

Looking Back, It Seems to Me---

I didn't care too much for the recent labor bill. It seemed to me it needed to be signed because there wasn't anything else to do.

But there was something else that troubled me, and still troubles me. It troubles me mightily. It was another reason I felt the bill had to be signed.

Nowhere in Labor was there a Labor leader who publicly admitted and recognized the fact of public reaction against many of the practices of Labor.

Many would do so in private.

But all over this country there was a democratic demand for reform of these practices, and Labor failed to heed it. Worse, still, Labor refused to recognize it publicly.

Enemies I was sure all along that the enemies of Labor had got in some licks on the labor bill. My instincts were against the bill. I did not like the NAM tactics in support of it. But I did not see how a man might honestly say that democracy, about which Labor talked so much, had not asked for a reform of some labor practices. And emphatically so.

And Labor's attitude was, it seemed to me, equally bad with that of the manufacturers, many of, and perhaps most of, whom would like to have Labor across a barrel. The anti-Labor record in this country, back through the years, is an evil and dismaying one, especially in coal and textiles, and it cost me a long struggle to say that since there was no other legislation, the Taft bill ought to be signed.

And the chief reason I could bring myself to say so was the stubborn and intellectually dishonest refusal of Labor to recognize the hard fact of public reaction against many of their practices.

Failure Of all those who protested to me against the bill, and of all the committees which went to Washington, not one said, "This is what we want," or, "This is what we think we ought to have."

There was just opposition to everything proposed.

And that was not honest, nor was it good politics.

It refused to admit that a vast majority of the American people were opposed to some abusive labor practices.

The bill is pretty bad in spots. Some of it obviously is class legislation and therefore will be declared unconstitutional. There are other sections of it which will make it, as has been said, "A lawyer's paradise."

The weakness of Labor's position—refusal to recognize public reaction against abuses they themselves privately admitted, was the weakness of the presidential veto—he attacked every phase of the bill.

Everywhere? This leads on to something else. Here of late the CIO textile committee has had several defeats. Their record, for the year, is, from their viewpoint, good. They have won a good many elections by satisfactory margins.

I know of some textile plants which need unions. But, again, it is obvious there are some plants where the workers feel working conditions are good and they can, and have, themselves, bargained with their employers. On the other hand, it has always seemed to me that any plant, or any business which had good working conditions, and this fact was so admitted by employees, had a right to expect a reciprocal attitude from employees—namely, a chance to correct any proved inequities without being subjected to an organizing campaign. A company which has honest, good working conditions earns, it seems to me, the right to expect such treatment.

However, to get back to the textile field. I am well aware of the terror campaigns against organization in some mill towns.

Question But, I am wondering if many people who work in industry are not themselves of a mind that at least some labor practices need reform.

Some few days ago I was in Rome, Georgia, the day before an election at the large Lindale plant nearby. I sat at lunch with two CIO organizers. One of them I greatly admire and regard as as a friend. His integrity and character are as good as that of any person I know. His associate I did not know. My friend thought the election was in doubt, but would be close.

It was not close. The employees rejected the union by a vote of 1,982 to 438. Not only did they reject, but they staged a sort of victory demonstration in the streets in which the entire 1,982 opposing vote apparently participated.

Across the river, near Cedartown, Georgia, employees of another mill, rejecting the union by 849 to 149, went out and cheered the superintendent.

Fear? It is difficult for me to believe that men and women who had been made to vote against the union through fear, would have carried on into demonstrations. They might have voted, in fear, but they scarcely would have been led to the reaction of joining hundreds of others in cheering. Fear begets sullen quiet, not cheering.

I am quite convinced that there is a feeling over this country, which ran through the labor memberships, that all was not well within their own organizations. It seems to me that it was Labor's refusal to face the fact that this public opinion, which itself was a democratic demand, that made it possible for their enemies to get in their licks.

It troubles me also, because if we cannot have reconciliation and full production while the law is tested by the courts, we certainly will bring down upon ourselves international and national failure and every social strata will feel the burden and the sorrow of it.

And So, If 'Reading Maketh a Full Man---'

It would be redundancy to again express here, in detail, the vital necessity of self-education, through reading and study, if the democratic ideal is to draw nearer realization. For only if democracy is firmly founded on an informed, well-educated public, can it operate with intelligence and strength.

It is axiomatic that, if the people generally are to become informed, well-educated, books of all types must be constantly available to all who would read. This means, simply, that the city or community which would see its citizens advance and thus advance itself, must provide adequate and modern library facilities, facilities where the individual may easily, without constraint, naturally find the books he seeks, always ready for the reading.

Thus there is especial interest, at this time, in the careful report, made after complete survey, on Atlanta's library facilities and needs. The report, made public yesterday by Miss Fanny D. Hinton, librarian of the Carnegie Library of Atlanta, was made by Dr. Joseph L. Wheeler, recognized internationally as an authority on library organization and library building.

Half Service Dr. Wheeler found that Atlanta has approximately half the public library service which should be provided a modern city of its service. The building facilities should be twice the present size, there should be twice the number of books on the shelves, the personnel, while exceptionally fine as to quality, should be double the present number and the average library salary should be increased, to make it commensurate with the national average of which it now falls far short.

The location of the central Carnegie Library is excellent, Dr. Wheeler reports. There is a sufficient number of branch libraries, though new buildings should be provided for three of the branches. Incidentally, a library should always be located on or near a main business street, where it invites patronage, just as do the more popular retail stores.

New Building? Dr. Wheeler condemns the present central library building as extremely wasteful of space, architecturally badly arranged, and with a too-ornate exterior.

He recommends a new library building, three stories high, for the present site, with the inclusion of that property west of the library on the same block, so that the new building would cover the entire length of the block from Forsyth to Fairlie Streets, on Carnegie Way.

He describes a modern, streamlined building in his recommendations and points out how inestimable a benefit would accrue to the city through such a building.

Such a building, he states, could provide shelf space for four times as many books as the present structure; it could add tremendously to the efficiency of the library operation and could make it far easier and more attractive for the average citizen using library service.

But there is nothing wrong with the site of the present library. The city fathers who established it there, half a century ago, selected better than they could possibly know, in regard to the subsequent growth and development of the city.

Speaking generally, on the Atlanta library, Dr. Wheeler states, "Atlanta must not perpetuate the delusion that a library is something apart from the everyday habits, thoughts and work of the intelligent mass of the population. Its library building should be so attractive, so easily approached, that everyone will be drawn to books and information. It is difficult to think of a more certain and economical way in which to build up the intelligence, knowledge, ambitions and ideals of a great population than to put the public library and its materials dynamically in the heart of everything."

One Trick Too Many

A man in a blue serge suit was walking along a country road. The June sun was making little bubbles in the tar underfoot. The man wished he had accepted the real estate agent's offer to drive him out and show him the Lacey farm.

A station wagon with "U. S. Mail—R.F.D." stencilled on its side pulled up alongside him. "Hop in," said the driver. "Ain't supposed to pick up passengers, but I don't guess anybody'll see us out here.

"Where you headed? The Lacey place? Mighty nice piece of property. I guess you never knew Jim Lacey, did you? Well, he was quite a card. Always figuring out some new piece of devilment. I never did see the beat of Jim at a church sociable or a wedding. Always cutting up.

"Yessir, we sure miss Jim around here. Don't seem as if any of the new crop of young fellows has his sense of humor. Never forget the time he scared the daylights out of me. About 10 years ago, it was. I was making my regular mail delivery along this road. As I got to the Lacey place, Ben Morton came running out of the barn. Ben was Jim's best friend, and they used to play together all the time. Ben was hollering something awful. I climbed out of the Lizzie and run up to the barn behind him. And there I see Jim Lacey hanging from a rafter. Rope around his neck. Getting a little purple in the face.

"I PICKED up a scythe and cut him down. As soon as he hit the floor, he dived between my legs and skedaddled for the field, laughing fit to bust. Seems he'd seen a fellow do this here hanging trick in the circus and he practiced up on it till he got it right. Got so he could tense up his neck muscles and hang for two or three minutes. Of course, he'd never pull it unless he knew someone was handy to cut him down.

"When the war came along, Jim Lacey got drafted. His friend, Ben Morton, didn't wait for the draft board. Signed up the day after Pearl Harbor and was shipped overseas pretty quick. Jim was sent to one of the camps down in Georgia.

"One day he showed back here in civies again. You know how Jim got out? With that old hanging trick! He told me he strung himself up one night in the barracks when he knew the guard on duty was coming through. The doctors figured he was a psycho whatchamacallit and sent him home.

"He worked the farm after that. When Old Man Lacey died, Jim took the insurance money and got himself some good machinery. Did right well—you know the way prices were.

"Well, after the war was over, one of the first boys to get back was Ben Morton. He naturally wanted to say hello to his old friend Jim, and came walking out this way. I passed him on the road about a quarter mile from the Lacey farm. Offered him a lift, but he said he was enjoying the walk.

"I DIDN'T have any mail for Jim that day, but as I passed his place I hollered out that Ben Morton was coming up the road.

"Ben told me the rest of the story. When he got up to the house and yelled for Jim, Jim called out from the barn and told him he was in there. When Ben walked into the barn, Jim was hanging by the neck from one of the crossbeams with a big grin on his face. He was doing his old trick to hand Ben a laugh."

The old postman brought the station wagon to a stop.

"Well, here's the Lacey place," he told the man in the blue serge suit. "Mighty nice piece of property. Too bad Jim ain't around to show it to you. You'd have got a big kick out of Jim. He was quite a card.

"And too bad his friend Ben Morton wasn't able to cut him down in time. You see, Ben had had both his arms blasted off on the beach at Anzio."

Over-Ridden And Under-Thanked

Several union spokesmen are openly blaming President Truman for Congress' failure to sustain his veto of the Taft-Hartley Labor Bill.

They admit he did all he could. . . . It's just that it wasn't enough.

One fails to understand labor's position in the matter. Twenty Southern Democrats voted with Republican Senators to override the veto, but that was as unexpected as a hole in a doughnut.

When it comes to labor legislation, the Dixie delegation makes the GOP Old Guard look as liberal as the amen corner of a Henry Wallace clambake.

The truth of the matter is that labor had gotten out over its head, far beyond reach of the veto rope. It started a conflagration and is sore because Harry's hand extinguisher wasn't enough to put it out.

But though overridden and underthanked, Truman needn't worry about losing labor in '48. It'll be with him if only for want of somewhere else to go.

Meanwhile, the White House lacking air conditioning, he may even find comfort, during the hot Summer months, in the chill winds of labor's ingratitude.

GOP Reverses Tax Reduction Stand

WASHINGTON.—The Republicans may have to eat crow on all of the loose charges they were recently making about the Democrats playing politics with the income tax reduction bill.

After President Truman's veto of the measure was sustained, we were told by Speaker of the House Joe Martin and other GOP congressional leaders that that marked the end of the tax legislation this session.

The program then was to forget tax reduction until the next session, leaving the Democrats to bear the responsibility for the present failure. In the meantime, the Republicans had hoped to make much of the refusal of Democrats to join with them in efforts to override the President's veto.

But the situation has gone somewhat into reverse. Instead of burying tax legislation until next year, the Republicans have suddenly seen the necessity for reviving it.

And instead of clinging to their original ideas as to the form the legislation should take, they are now willing to make it conform more to what the Democrats wanted at the outset.

New Bill To this end, Chairman Harold Knutson, of the House Ways and Means Committee, has already introduced a new bill changing the effective date of the proposed tax reductions to Jan. 1, 1948, in lieu of the July 1, 1947, date carried in the measure vetoed by Mr. Truman.

He was prompted to do so by assurances from influential Democratic leaders that a bill written in this form would be far more attractive to Administration supporters. Two such leaders, Sen. Walter F. George, of Georgia, and Sen. Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, recognized as two of the foremost fiscal experts in Congress, have announced publicly their willingness to go along with a bill of this scope.

The suggestion is even made by these Democratic Senators that the Treasury Department might be willing to accept a tax reduction program that is deferred until the beginning of next year.

What is interesting about the whole thing is that this is the very proposition made to Republican leaders by Democrats in the beginning.

George's Plan Before the tax bill was ever brought before the Upper Chamber, Sen. George, former Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, went to Sen. Millikin, of Colorado, the present Chairman, and suggested that if the Republicans would change the effective date to Jan. 1, minority leaders generally would support the measure.

The Georgia Senator then was of the opinion that the Administration would go along with the program on that basis. He felt that the Treasury would be agreeable, which means that there would have been little prospect of a presidential veto.

But the Republicans, after having the matter considered by their policy committee, were determined to do things in their own way. They did not want to co-operate with the minority and the White House, something that was essential to final enactment of a bill, as subsequent events have proven.

Either they thought they would be able to put the bill through without full Democratic support, or they felt they would be able to make political capital out of a White House veto.

Objection As a matter of fact, the chief objection most Democrats made to the Republican tax bill from the start was over its timing.

The Democratic position all along was that tax reduction should not come until it was seen how much savings were to be effected from reducing federal expenditures. If enough surplus was left over, after paying a substantial sum toward reducing the huge national debt, then no one objected to this being applied to tax reduction.

Mr. Truman made that the keystone of his veto. He wanted to see what the state of the Treasury was before taking up taxes.

But the Republicans did not want to delay. Having made pledges in the last campaign to reduce taxes, they wanted to go forward with the fulfillment of these promises. Democrats sought to have the bill held up until a clearer picture of the fiscal situation was possible. All efforts to this end were voted down.

It now looks as though the Republicans will have to go back and accept the original proposition of the Democrats, if any tax legislation is to come at the present session.

HAROLD MARTIN

The House Where Stevenson Lived

APIA, British Samoa—We went up for lunch to the Administration house, where Robert Louis Stevenson died. The Administrator, a grim old New Zealander with one eye drooped and one side of his face dead from a bayonet cut, told the story as best he knew it.

"Don't know too much about it, really," he said, "but this is it. Built it here toward the end of the eighties, when he came out, trying to find a place where he might live a little longer with the TB bugs working on him. Called it Vailima. Means 'five waters' in Samoan. Don't know quite why he called it that. Some springs or ponds now gone were then about, perhaps."

Last Days We entered the big stone gates and drove up the winding driveway that curved through a great expanse of green lawn toward the house. It was long and low and sprawling, with a great open sitting room, screened but windowless, at the second floor. Over the porte-cochere grew a profusion of flowering vines. It had about it a look of quietness and of peace, and I think perhaps Stevenson's last days must have been happy here.

We went in and to the left a wide stair ascended to the second floor.

"He fell right there, they say," the Colonel said. "He was coming down the stairway to the dining room when the vein broke in his head. Died very quickly, they say. Buried by the natives, the next morning, on the top of that mountain there. Had to do it quickly, you know. Can't keep them in this heat."

"The Germans changed the house about somewhat. They were here as administrators when he was here, you know. They took it over later and added a wing or so. But this part is just the same."

Ghost, Too We went down to luncheon.

"His chairs we are using now," the Colonel said. "The table, also. Quite a few things still about that once were his. Even his ghost, supposedly. When I took over here from Sir Arthur Turnbull, Her Ladyship told me about it. Said he rapped. I told her that I thought Stevenson was too clever a man to have a ghost content with merely rapping. He'd think up something much more original. Bit of verse on the walls, something like that."

"Does the 'ghost' still rap?" I asked him.

"Not at all," said the Colonel. "Not after we scattered a bit of rat poison about the place."

In the afternoon I went to see an old man named Tattersall, one of the few men living in Apia who had known Stevenson when he was here.

"He'd come to town riding a little pony," the old man said. "Wearing a blue velvet jacket with big pearl buttons. The people loved him. They called him 'Tusitala—Teller of Tales.' I remember how he loved to dance, when a ship came in and the Germans had a function. He'd dance the lancers and the quadrille, until he was all white and ready to drop. I've many pictures of him, if you'd like to see."

Back at Vailima in the afternoon I stood with the Colonel at a big window looking out over the green foothills toward the high crest of Vaea, where Stevenson's grave lies.

House The old gentleman didn't speak for a while. He had talked a good deal, for a Britisher. Of the first World War, and the Egyptian troubles, and of the late war, in the Solomons, where he had led a famous troop of Fiji scouts. In all of which he had fought hard, and had been wounded. He looked up toward the mountain top. "You know the inscription, I suppose," he said. He paused for a moment. Then he began to quote.

"Under the wide and starry sky,
Dig the grave and let me lie.
Glad did I live and gladly die
And I laid me down with a will.

This be the verse you grave for me,
Here he lies where he longed to be.
Home is the sailor, home from the sea,
And the hunter home from the hill."

"Not bad," said the Colonel. "Not bad at all."

Then his little touch of sentiment seemed to embarrass him a little. He turned abruptly, with a snort.

"I say," he said, "could you do with a spot of whiskey?"

Oil Belongs To the People

The Supreme Court, in a 6-to-2 opinion, written by Mr. Justice Black, last Monday held that the land along the coast of California from low water mark, heading west, belongs, and always has, to the People of the United States. The language of this opinion also seems to apply to the coast lands of Texas, as well as other coastline States. In total, the oil alone that has been discovered or may lie unknown beneath salt water may be worth a fabulous sum.

I hope that I will not be regarded as immodest in saying that I had much to do with the starting of this case.

IN THE END, I decided that the surest and quickest route was a beeline to the Supreme Court itself. On several occasions, I urged President Roosevelt to authorize the Attorney General to bring suit in the name of the United States against the State of California. After consideration, he consented and authorized Francis Biddle, who was then the Attorney General, to proceed. Then President Roosevelt died, and Mr. Biddle properly thought that he should clear with President Truman before authorizing a suit be brought in the United States District Court of California.

I had always urged the filing of an original suit in the Supreme Court, against California, and I persuaded President Truman to instruct his Attorney General, Mr. Tom Clark, to dismiss the suit in the District Court and file an original proceeding in the Supreme Court. Thus we were able to get a much quicker decision than if the case had dragged its weary way from the District Court to the Circuit Court of Appeals and then to the Supreme Court.

Now the Congress and the President will have to decide what to do with this oil which belongs to the people of the United States. For a number of years, under an erroneous assumption of ownership, the State of California has been granting leases for the pumping what it asserted to be its oil.

ALREADY there are reports that an effort will be made to have the Congress enact a law which will give these valuable properties back to California. Such a bill should not pass. If it should, it ought to be vetoed without question by President Truman. Congress has no right to give away valuable property that belongs to all of the people. The taxpayer of Maine or of Maryland or of Nevada has an equity in these rich oil lands. It would be outrageous even to suggest that rich dividend-paying properties, the income from which could go to reduce the National debt, or in mitigation of taxes, should be given away.

Moreover, the alienation of these Federal properties would create a bad precedent. It is pretty generally known that Sen. McCarran, who was so interested, at the last session of the Congress, in putting through a bill that in effect would have quit-claimed all such lands to the adjacent States, has been waiting for a good opportunity to slip through a bill dispossessing the United States of ownership, or at least of the jurisdiction and control, of our vast public domain. Sen. McCarran, and some other members of the Congress, too, seem to think that their principal duty is to represent special interests, especially if they are local.

The public should be on guard. If they permit this rich treasure—that the Supreme Court has held to be the peoples'—to be given away, they may as well prepare themselves to see the exploiters run off with every other National asset upon which they can get their hands. The loot would not even be limited to what is moveable.

How to Outsmart a River

Maybe you read about the flood in Litchfield County. It never bothered our town—even though the river's only half a mile away.

Seven years ago, the farmers around here got together—and put in a set of flood controls, to regulate high water, and protect our fields. It took a pack of labor and co-operation, but it worked.

We were talking about it in Andy's Garden Tavern, over a friendly glass of beer; and Andy was saying how it was like the brewing industry's Self-Regulation, as he called it. The brewers work with beer retailers to help them maintain decent, clean taverns. Brewers don't want beer sold in the other kind. This system of moral suasion and self-control works mighty well, too, Andy says.

From where I sit, co-operative regulation is the best way of getting sure results—whether it's keeping our wheat fields healthy, or keeping our taverns neat and clean and law-abiding.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

An Essay On Fanaticism

NEW YORK—A cable item from Bayreuth, Germany, suggests a fair comparison between some of the followers of Adolf Hitler and some of the adherents of Franklin D. Roosevelt. This little dispatch reported that the prosecution in the trial of Frau Winifred Wagner charged her with being one of Adolf Hitler's "most fanatical followers." Apparently that is a criminal charge and this defendant may be punished for fanaticism.

Immediately on the burial of Roosevelt at Hyde Park many of our newspapers, including even some papers of the political opposition, started to refer to this grave of a mortal man as a "shrine." That is fanaticism. A shrine is the burial place of a sacred or holy person and Roosevelt certainly was neither except to the fanatics among his following. Millions who voted for him, whether by deliberate choice or because they were thorough Democrats, knew he had great faults but voted for him nevertheless. These Americans accord to his grave no more spiritual or holy significance than to the grave of any other person.

FANATICISM connotes bigotry and intolerance of the opinions of others. Jim Farley has learned something about this since his memoirs began in Collier's. Not only are his opinions condemned but he is not even given credit for truthfulness, although even Roosevelt, as long as he lived, and practically all the reputable men in public life in Jim's time, have acknowledged that truthfulness is his greatest virtue.

When he says that Mrs. Roosevelt told him that Franklin enjoyed himself only among his social equals, thus suggesting that snobbery which was apparent in all his dealings with the reporters, Jim tacitly invites Mrs. Roosevelt to deny it. She does not deny that she said this. Nor, for that matter, has any member of his personal or official family ever tried to deny that he personally engineered several "clever little schemes having the color of legality" for the benefit of his son, Elliott. Yet there has been a reaction and a counter-propaganda that is reminiscent of Goebbels himself, who employed the trick method of suggesting that all those Germans who opposed Hitler were monsters for that very reason.

Hitler's angriest enemies among us, mostly vocal and sedentary, do him the great honor of imitating the most insensate of the Hitlerites.

Here is an example of this in the propaganda still current on our own country:

At the convention of the newspaper guild in Sioux City, Allan S. Haywood, a vice president of the CIO, said that we had not statesmen but "men of hate" in Congress, who "hate Roosevelt, hate the New Deal, hate labor."

NOW, few of us who opposed Roosevelt hated him as furiously and unreasonably as we ourselves are hated by the persons who utter such political remarks. We are damned for hating Roosevelt regardless of our excellent reasons. We hated the New Deal for good reasons both patriotic and moral, and the main reason was that it was too much like Hitlerism.

And, of course, none of these "men of hate" in Congress actually hates "labor." They hate the reptilian, the corrupt and treacherous exploiters and betrayers of labor who were given their powers by Roosevelt through the Wagner Act.

In another demonstration, Basil O'Connor, Roosevelt's old law partner and executor, made a speech at Warm Springs, Ga., in which he declared that Roosevelt created the foundation "which stands as a living memorial to his overflowing love for his fellow men and his tender sympathy for all who suffer from the afflictions to which mankind is heir. He wanted all, particularly those less privileged with worldly goods than he, to have the benefit of the skills which brought him back . . . ," O'Connor said.

THIS IS just disgusting. Roosevelt started this foundation to make money, and he held up John J. Raskob for a private gift of a fortune to recoup his own private investment in Warm Springs before he would agree to leave the place and run for Governor in 1928. John J. Raskob is still alive and he undoubtedly has the cancelled checks. An audit of the books of Warm Springs would prove or disprove his statements. That audit never is presented.

Many parents of crippled children know, moreover, that when they tried to obtain for them "the benefit of the skills which brought him back," they found the prices impossibly high. Others know that Roosevelt sold Warm Springs property by deeds which excluded Negroes perpetually from the ownership or use of such land, and others among us know that his birthday ball exercises were whooped up by Carl Byoir, a public relations expert, at the expense of Henry L. Doherty, the public utilities magnate, for the purpose of buying Doherty immunity from harassment and/or prosecution and that this purpose was accomplished by this means. It was Byoir, not Roosevelt, who hit upon the sentimental trick of lending the President's birthday to crippled children.

The character of Roosevelt that is presented historically to the people of today and to the historians of the future is shockingly dishonest. There are fanatics among his following who still regard him as a holy man and would suppress every shred of the truth about him. The wild ferocity of Hitler's idolators was never more savage and intolerant of truth and honest opinion. The only difference is that they haven't the power to suppress and persecute.

OLLIE REEVES

Just a Rhyme a Day

"Flash-floods, tornadoes, cloudbursts and freak weather generally prevail throughout country."
—Weather report.

From the Arctic to the Tropic, "from Rangoon to Mandalay"
"Old Man Weather," as a topic, takes a beating every day.
It's a subject that is greatly used and somewhat frazzled out,
But the type we're having lately is a thing to talk about.

* * * *

When summer snows begin to thaw and levees start to leak
And people out in Arkansas go floating down the creek,
When farmers' barns disintegrate and silos tumble in
As cyclones swoop and separate the cotton from the gin.
When we must build a fire at night to warm each frigid spot—
"This weather that we have is quite unusual, is it not?"

Today it may be dry and hot, tomorrow it will snow
To either scald a Hottentot or chill an Eskimo.
The rain comes down in bucketfulls and drowns the planted seeds,
The farmer has no chance to pull the saturated weeds—
You suffer from congestion and your lips are turning blue
And no one asks the question, "Is it hot enough for you?"

Let's telephone the weatherman and put him on the spot . . .
"This weather that we're having is unusual, is it not?"

Year-'Round Grazing Combinations

A good friend writes to inquire what we think of Hugh McRae's recent discussion in the press of his system of year-round pastures. There is nothing more important to livestock men than this matter of pasturage. We have known and admired Mr. McRae for many years and would say unhesitatingly that any suggestions he offers in the way of pastures should be listened to with concentrated attention. For he has had many years of experience and has consistently and persistently tried to produce year-round grazing. And has done so, more than once.

Another thing; Mr. McRae has been willing to change to something better or easier when convinced. He has had at least three different year-round grazing combinations since we became acquainted with him in the early twenties.

ONE OF HIS early combinations included considerable use of soy beans. In those days he did not believe in perennials. Later he worked out a combination including kudzu. Now, his year-round grazing combination is made up of Johnson grass, Kobe lespedeza, White Dutch clover, Crimson clover, Manganese clover, and chess or cheat (wild oats to us). All of these plants grow in one field, and provide complete year-round grazing for the dairy cattle. The fields are well fertilized.

I am inclined to believe that this combination will do well for us in the Piedmont section, if not providing 12 months grazing, certainly a large part of it. I have a four-acre field which has all of these plants growing in it except White Dutch clover and this field provides grazing for four cows most days of the year but not every day in the year. Still, we have not given it the attention Mr. McRae has given his fields.

THERE ARE one or two practices which we believe must be followed if the field is to be grazed regularly. The Kobe lespedeza must be renewed occasionally, the Johnson grass must be reseeded, and the field must be harrowed lightly every August in order to work the Manganese clover seed into the soil. This seed sometimes fails to germinate unless it is on or in the ground. These matters we have learned by personal experience.

This is little enough to do in order to have a fairly complete year-round pasture. One other thing; Mr. McRae's farm is located near Wilmington, N. C., which is somewhat warmer than the Piedmont section of Georgia, hence we should not be too depressed if we cannot get the same Winter results as does this splendid farmer. On the other hand, our lands are stronger than his and if properly fertilized, may produce the same outstanding results. The system is well worth trying.

GALLUP POLL

Only a Third Know License

PRINCETON, N. J.—Only one-third of the car owners of the country can offhand remember the license number of their cars. The other two-thirds can't.

"I think it's got a 'Z' in it and a 6," said one motorist interviewed in the Gallup Poll's auto number memory derby. But when the interviewer and the motorist went out to the garage and looked, the number turned out to be 7C4251. "Oh, I must have been thinking of last year's plate," said the motorist, weakly.

The auto license memory derby was conducted by the Institute from coast to coast as a hot-weather poll, and it found that women are far worse than men at remembering license plates.

Car owners were asked:

"Offhand, can you tell me the exact license number of your car?"

The results follow:

Thirty-two per cent said definitely that they know the number, and many started to reel it off.

Twenty per cent said they weren't sure what the number is.

Forty-eight per cent frankly admitted that they don't know their own number.

Among men, 37 per cent say they know the number, while the rest don't know or aren't sure. Among women, only 24 per cent know.

The poll solves one mystery. Now we know why, when the chairman of the Ladies Aid Society announces that a blue Chevvy with license B7343 is blocking the driveway and will the owner please move it, nobody in the audience stirs. The lady in question doesn't remember her own number.

SENATOR SOAPER

THE PRICE cut on baby buggies is a beginning. Now for the old-fashioned dollar's worth of groceries that was dangerous when piled on top of baby.

"I SEE Parliament has got around to the problem of bad English coffee," said an American today, as he dropped the tea ball, tag and all, into the breakfast pot.

THE $20,000 bungalow is built by builders, which possibly explains the price. The ball-point pen people would by now be peddling this item for $385.

EUROPEANS unacquainted with the Wallace oratory are warned not to wait several days to ask what he meant, as by that time Hank is as baffled as anybody.

A LINE OF collapsible furniture is new, for the home. An extra something, for those interested in world politics, is the Italian cabinet that folds.

THOMAS L. STOKES

NLRB Can't Fight Community Coercion

WASHINGTON—Some interesting questions are raised in a case just decided by the National Labor Relations Board, the first of its kind. It had particular reference to union acivity and organization in the South, but also is applicable elsewhere.

The NLRB set aside an election at Smithfield, Va., home of the Smithfield ham, on the unique ground that intimidation by the community—not the employer in this case—had made a fair election impossible. The board exonerated the employer, P. D. Gwaltney, Jr., & Company, Inc., packers, of any coercive activities as charged by the union, CIO's United Packinghouse Workers of America. The union lost the election.

The case is interesting because it reveals in graphic detail the sort of threatening tactics familiar in small communities, especially in the South, in combatting union organization. Smithfield has a population of about 1,300, half Negroes. Such resistance to union activity is expected to be intensified now, in the South in particular, with passage of the Taft-Hartley bill which got overwhelming support among Southern Democrats in Congress.

ANOTHER interesting feature is suggested by the board's order for a new election "at such time as the regional director advises us that circumstances permit a free choice among the employees."

When will this time come? When will community feeling change?

The significant point is that if a new election is held and the same sort of intimidation occurs, the board is powerless to do anything about it, other than to set aside that election and order still another. The board has no police powers and neither the Wagner Act nor the new Taft-Hartley law offers any remedy.

While there have been similar acts of community intimidation in previous cases, the employer always has been involved, so that the board could fix the blame directly under the law. In this case a company official and the plant foreman made speeches to the employees—80 percent of them Negroes—suggesting an independent union. The company also wrote to every employee before the election opposing a CIO union. But the board found "nothing coercive" in these actions and held there was "no persuasive evidence" in the record linking the employer with intimidation in the community that made a fair election impossible.

THIS INTIMIDATION involved Jesse J. Scott, editor of the local weekly newspaper; F. M. Barrett, an insurance salesman and retired Navy officer who was closely associated with Mr. Scott in anti-union activity and was busy stirring up the townspeople; a citizens committee, of which Mr. Scott was one of the organizers; a mass meeting promoted by the citizens committee; County Sheriff Whitehead and City Police Chief Cornwell.

At the mass meeting, held at night and divided about half and half between whites and Negroes, Remmie Arnold, president of the Southern States Industrial Council, "delivered a strong attack against the CIO and implied that if the CIO were victorious the employer's plant might close, 'flaming crosses' might burn on Southern hillsides, and the 'Klan' might return," the NLRB said. Some Negro workers at the plant were present at the mass meeting, which was widely publicized in Mr. Scott's paper. Lloyd Vaughan, CIO organizer, was not permitted to speak.

That afternoon he and Donald A. Swazey, another CIO representative, were threatened with violence, and Sheriff Whitehead threatened to eject Mr. Vaughan from the town.

There was much more from beginning to end, but this is enough to show a ghastly American faction opposing a CIO union. But simile of Fascism.

Baseball In the Raw —That's Class D

Class D baseball may be the best baseball after all.

It is the game as a yearling. The players are as unbroken colts, spirited and willing but not yet broken to the saddle and rider stages of the big leagues. The fans are real fans. They are home-towners and proud of it. To lose makes them grumpy and disagreeable. It even puts some in bed.

The umpires are like the players, just starting in their profession. They are undismayed by freak happenings which always occur. The conventions of their more experienced brothers mean nothing. They call 'em like they see 'em and risk life and limb doing it.

Take the Valdosta-Americus game the other night for example. The Americus slugger was at the plate. He was a husky, ruddy-faced youth who doesn't shave more than twice a week.

The umpire was a fiery little fellow who sounded like a bantam rooster calling balls and strikes and looked like a pointer dog making decisions on the base paths.

He called a strike on the slugger and the latter immediately turned upon him.

"Little outside, wasn't it?" he demanded, by way of opening conversation.

"Maybe," replied the umpire, dusting off the plate, "but even if it had been in there, you couldn't have hit it. Play ball!"

Definitely a Split During a game in Waycross the other night, the plate umpire raised his hand and yelled: "Time!"

He walked out to the mound, where he was joined by the base ump. The two engaged in serious conversation for a moment and then, calling time again, stalked majestically off the field to their dressing room in left field.

There wasn't a word of explanation to anybody. The startled players fretted over the diamond for some 10 minutes and then the umps reappeared, took up their position and ordered the game continued.

What happened remained a mystery until the following day, when it was learned the plate umpire had split the seat of his trousers.

He and his partner had retired to the dressing room for emergency repairs with tape and a quick change of trousers.

Taking Money From Jesse George Pipgras, the Red Sox scout who is beating the bushes in South Georgia and Florida, recalled an incident which happened to Bill Summers when he was umpiring in the Eastern League.

Summers and his partner were in Allentown, Pa., for a series and the local fans, mostly of Dutch descent, had been riding Summers hard. They had nicknamed him "Jesse James" and shouted it with great glee upon the slightest provocation.

Coming into the park for the final game of the series, Summers managed to talk a mounted policeman into lending him his horse for a few moments. The cop was "riding the fence" keeping kids out of the park and Summers negotiated the loan out in center field.

He mounted and somehow his spikes raked the horse's side. The animal dashed madly toward home plate, became confused by the crowd at the pitcher's mound and abruptly applied four straight-legged brakes.

Summers sailed over the horse's head and landed right on top of the plate. He arose majestically, dusted himself off and bellowed at the roaring fans:

"Jesse James has arrived. Play ball!"

A telegram from the league President was awaiting him at the hotel. It read:

"Your grand entry, Jesse, costs you exactly 50 bucks."

Good!—And Wild The Crackers have a kid left-hander at Gainesville, Fla., who may become another Grove if he gets control.

In fact, Pipgras says Mason Leeper would be in the big leagues right now, even at 18, if he could get the ball over the plate.

He started the season at Waycross but wildness made him ineffectual. He was shipped to Gainesville, where he established a new strikeout record of 22 in the first game he pitched.

However, he still has his troubles. The other night he fanned 15 and allowed only one hit. Yet he lost the game, 8-3. You see, he walked 18.

Chicks Capture First, 11-1

By F. M. WILLIAMS
Constitution Sports Writer.

MEMPHIS, June 29—Southpaw Forrest Thompson pitched a magnificent five-hitter to win his twelfth game of the year, 2 to 1, in the nightcap of a double-header before 9,461 fans here Sunday afternoon. The Chicks pounded George Diehl for 17 hits to win the opener, 11 to 1.

It was the second straight time that Thompson has turned back the Chicks by a 2 to 1 margin and the third time this season he has won by that score.

He never was better. The Chicks lone run was unearned, the result of a passed ball by Mike Ulisney in the sixth inning. That, however, was the only inning more than one hit was made off the left-hander. Paul Armstrong and George Bradley got one base knocks and the latter drove in Johnny Mauer, who had forced Armstrong and gone to second on the passed ball.

The Crackers picked up a run in the first inning on Charley Trippi's single, an infield out and Ted Cieslak's Texas Leaguer double to right.

They added another in the fifth when Thompson led off with a single and went to second on Trippi's sacrifice. Ben Steiner walked and the bases were loaded when Mauer bobbled Cieslak's grounder. Charley Glock flied to Lindsay Deal in left and Thompson came home easily after the catch.

The first game, from a Cracker standpoint, was two hours and seventeen minutes of nightmarish baseball, with Diehl not exactly deserving all the punishment he had to take, although he was far from effective.

The Chicks got three runs off him in the second on hits that were distinctly of fluke variety.

The Chicks got single runs in the fourth and seventh and then the Chicks got completely out of hand in the eighth to score six times. The playoff blow in the big inning has Deal's double that scored three runners. By the time that happened it was too late and Manager Ki Ki Cuyler just let Diehl stay out there.

The two clubs play the third of a four-game series Monday night with ex-Cracker Dick Mauney slated to hurl for Memphis and Shelby Kinney for Atlanta.

Jameson's Record 295 Nets National Title

Grant, Teagle Capture Net Tourney Openers

By HARLEY BOWERS

Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, idle from Atlanta singles tennis tournament play since he won the city title in 1929, wasted no time in living up to his favorite's role in the present city meet as he moved easily into the third round over Dr. Allen Smith, 6-2, 6-2, in opening day of play Sunday at the North Side Club.

Both the Mighty Atom and Smith had drawn first round byes and their match was a second round affair.

Jack Teagle, third seeded, won over Allan Morris, strong contender for the Junior title, 6-1, 6-0, and Vince Connerat breezed past Mark Dale, 6-3, 6-2, while Russell Bobbitt, seeded fourth, advanced by default.

They were the only seeded participants slated for action Sunday, with Don Floyd, Malcolm Manley, Carl Maddox and Howard McCall scheduled to battle first round opponents today.

Two University of Georgia stars figured in the top matches today with M. B. Wheeler, number one man, facing Cortez Suttles, one of the eight "placed" players, at 5 p. m. Niel Walker, another highly rated Bulldog, battles Jim Daly, also at 5.

RESULTS

Vince Connerat beat Mark Dale, 6-3, 6-2; Glenn Dudley beat Don Smith, 6-0, 6-1; Ed McBrayer, bye; Cortez Suttles beat Elliott Gatehouse, default; Neil Walker beat Lt. Col. C. W. Cheney, 6-3, 6-1; Jack Teagle beat Allan Morris, 6-1, 6-0; Dan Magill beat Parker Stilwell, 6-1, 6-1.

Hank Crawford beat Pierre Howard, 6-2, 6-0; Russell Bobbitt beat Jerry Hunt, by default; Earl Churchill beat Elijah Brown, 6-3, 8-6; M. B. Wheeler beat McNeil, 7-5, 8-6; Tom Bird beat George Blackstock, 6-2, 6-0; Harley Bowers beat Milton Allen, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4; Lt. Robert H. Read beat Jib Trentham, 9-7, 9-7.

Bitsy Grant beat Dr. Allan Smith, 6-2, 6-2; Berry Nall beat Bill Reeves, 7-5, 4-6, 6-2.

Ben Hogan Winner With 270

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, June 29—(AP)—Ben Hogan, of Hershey, Pa., vaulted into professional golf's top money-winning spot Sunday by winning the $15,900 Chicago Victory National Golf Tournament at Westward Ho Course with a 14-under-par 270.

Little Ben methodically moved into the lead at the 54-hole mark. He fired a one-under-par 70 in the closing 18-hole round to finish four strokes ahead of luckless Sam Snead who had 274 after a final 69.

Snead, who led the first two rounds but faltered Saturday with a damaging 75, barely salvaged second place from Ellsworth Vines, the rangy ex-tennis star from Chicago, whose 70 Sunday gave him a 275.

Hogan's closing round over the par 71, flat Westward Ho Course was his poorest after 66-68-66. He grabbed first money of $2,000 to swell his 1947 winnings to $16,567, and passing Jimmy Demaret. Demaret finished with a feeble 284, even par.

Riley, Sessions Next; Suggs Fourth at 302

By BERT PRATHER
Constitution Sports Writer.

STARMOUNT COUNTRY CLUB, GREENSBORO, N. C., June 29—Betty Jameson, blond San Antonio lass who twice was National Amateur Champion before turning professional, Sunday smashed two records as she fired a six-under-par 70 here to win the Women's National Open Golf Championship with a 295 total.

Her 70, one under men's par for the 6,414-yard layout, broke the existing course record, and her 295 marked the first time a woman has broken 300 for the 72-hole route in a medal play tournament. Her card of 76-73-74-70—295 left her nine under par for the tournament.

It was the second straight year the National was won by a pro, Patty Berg beating Miss Jameson at match play for the title at Spokane, Wash., last year. The Minneapolis redhead Sunday fired a 75 for a 310 total and third place among the pros.

| Suggs' Card: | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Par out | 543 | 545 | 634—39 |
| Suggs out | 443 | 435 | 544—36 |
| Par in | 344 | 454 | 535—37—76 |
| Suggs in | 344 | 455 | 534—37—73 |

Amateurs Polly Riley, of Ft. Worth, and Sally Sessions, of Muskegon, Mich., fired twin 74s Sunday to finish in a tie for second place at 301.

Louise Suggs, Lithia Springs, Ga., hotshot who won the recent Women's Western Open at the Capital City Club, in Atlanta, came back strong Sunday for a brilliant 73 for a 302 total and fourth place. Had she sunk two putts which hung on the lip of the cup she would have matched men's par. Her card for the four rounds reads 74-76-79-73—302.

Miss Jameson's victory netted her $1,200 of the $7,500 prize money. Her nearest pro competitor was Helen Dettweiler, of Indio, Cal., who hauled down $1,000 for her 309, 14 strokes off the pace.

Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Chapel Hill, N. C., soared to a 79 Sunday, finishing in fifth place with 306.

M. R. Cook, L. J. Richheimer and Eric Erickson shared top honors in the blind bogey at Bobby Jones Golf Club Sunday with 74s.

Larry Miller Stars; Sardis Wins

Most of Atlanta's amateur baseball teams went on a scoring spree Sunday as second-half play got under way in the Georgia, North Atlanta, Peach, Chattahoochee, Atlanta, State and Flint River Leagues.

Highlighting competition was Sardis Methodists' smashing 18-5 triumph over Smyrna in the North Atlanta loop and Palmetto's 15-0 victory over Fayetteville behind the seven-hit hurling of Larry Miller, former Cracker.

C. Powell put his big bat to good use as he pounded out four home runs and a single in six trips to head the Sardis victory.

Joiner whiffed 16 batters as the Capitol Homes nine handcuffed Maynard Tire 10-2 in a Peach League feature. In the Chattahoochee Loop, Spier struck out 13 men as Post 1 took a 4-0 victory over Kraft Foods, and Bolton nipped Mayson 7-5.

John Nolan Wins At West End Club

Finals of the West End Golf Club handicap tournament were completed Saturday. John Nolan beat John W. Walton, 5-4, in the first flight, and Neal Richards defeated H. L. Carroll, 3-2, in the first flight consolation.

Mel Clark subdued Paul Ford, 5-3, in the second flight, and Bill Teague beat Bill Boyd, 1 up, in the consolation. G. E. Merritt rapped Sam Ramsey in the third flight, 5-4, and Harry Womack won from Brinton Forman, 1 up, in the consolation.

Two Foursomes Tie In East Lake Dogfite

H. E. Graham, H. E. Graham, Jr.; Elgin Poole and H. P. Bond shared first place in the East Lake dogfite Sunday, with Dr. A. O. Linch, J. B. McConnell, T. F. Mahone and R. H. Massey with scores of minus eleven.

G. B. Sisson, R. O. Estes, C. E. Beem and M. A. Thompson tallied second with a minus fourteen. H. H. Arnold, A. M. Perkerson, J. R. Perkerson, J. R. Harris and J.C. Thomson tied for third with R. L. Warwick, D. P. Bowen, C. F. Greene and H. H. Crouch with scores of minus fifteen.

Afraid To Eat Due To Gassy Upset Stomach

"I was so full of gas I was afraid I'd burst. Sour, bitter substance rose up from my upset stomach after meals. I got INNER-AID, and it worked inches of gas and bloat from me. Waistline is way down now. Meals are a pleasure. I praise INNER-AID to the sky."—This is an actual testimonial and we can verify it.

INNER-AID is the new mixture of 12 juices from Nature's Herbs. It has relieved many people who had never been really helped before by any medicine. Taken shortly before meals it mixes with your food, thus eliminating the poisons that foster stomach trouble. It will cleanse the bowels, clear gas from stomach, enliven liver and remove old bile from the system. So don't go on suffering! Get INNER-AID. Sold by all drug stores.—(Adv.)

LAST DAY FOR DRIVERS' LICENSES—Here's what you can expect to find if you go to the State Capitol or State Patrol headquarters on Confederate Avenue today to obtain a new driver's license. Tonight is the deadline for getting the new licenses. This picture was made Saturday when hundreds of motorists jammed the first floor of the State Capitol, requiring the office to stay open all day instead of closing at noon. Five-year licenses are on sale for the first time this year. This may shorten next year's line.

SCOUTS TRUMAN DOCTRINE

Grand 'Bust,' New War Author's Dark Vision

By JIM FURNISS

Dr. Fritz Sternberg, author of "The Coming Crisis" and internationally known lecturer and economist, was in Atlanta Sunday with a prophecy for the future so gloomy it blackened the sun.

As the German-born, 52-year-old ex-professor sees it, the world's last real boom was in 1929, while our present prosperity has lurking in it the elements for a permanent "bust" and a third world war.

"As I have been lecturing throughout the South, I have been surprised to find many people worrying why they are making so much money," he said, observing that such uncertainties seldom plagued the businessmen of the 1920s.

REASON FOR WORRY

These people have good reason to worry, Sternberg thinks.

After the 1929 boom, there followed a depression unlike those in previous history, he says. Normally, such a "bust" is followed by another boom when production surpasses previous peaks, but even in 1938 production here still was 25 percent below the 1929 high.

"That slump never has been liquidated," he asserts.

This country's economy is on the crest of a war-born boom during which productive capacity has risen 75 percent above 1929, Sternberg continued. Even now, however, he says, the only props holding this shaky platform aloft are pent-up savings, increased investments and a huge annual military budget of from 12 to 14 billion dollars.

MORE TROUBLE SEEN

In addition, the war created another new situation in which 250 American corporations grew to such an extent that about half the productive capacity in countries still under the free enterprise system is concentrated in their hands.

Knock away the props and you have trouble, permanent trouble, Sternberg believes, unless businessmen are shown that the way to develop normal peacetime markets is to raise the population's buying power.

Regarding war, Sternberg believes that the Truman Doctrine in the long run is playing right into Stalin's hands.

This country has given money to other countries to resist the encroachment of Communism, but in doing so has supported the extreme right-wing elements, Sternberg says. These right-wing parties which have been the backbone of Fascism in turn stifle true democratic elements, he says, leaving the people only a choice between the extreme right and the extreme left.

Abe White Heads All-Star Team

NEWNAN, June 25—(AP)—Official scorers of the Georgia-Alabama League Sunday announced their selections for the team that will meet league-leading Opelika in an all-star game at Opelika, Ala., July 7.

Abe White, Griffin Manager, was named to direct the All-Stars.

THE TEAM

Flock Breaks Record In Stock Car Race

Fonty Flock, of Atlanta, driving a four-carburetor, 1937 Ford, won the stock car races in Charlotte, N. C., Saturday, with Red Byron, also of Atlanta, coming third.

Flock, whose four-carburetor job is the only one east of the Mississippi, broke the Charlotte track record Saturday, and last Sunday broke the world's record in High Point, N. C.

Bill Snowden, of St. Augustine, came second.

OLD CONCERN IN NEW HOME—Above is the new home built and owned by the Tripp Auto Electric Exchange, at 786 Murphy Ave., S. W. It was established 11 years ago by Bill Tripp, who is still the owner and manager. Its feature is generators and starters, armatures of all makes and satisfactory repairs of these and electrical systems of all cars and trucks.

In New Building Now Located at 786 Murphy Ave.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON

Individual car owners and fleet operators of both autos and trucks are finding a muchly-appreciated service at the Tripp Auto Electric Exchange, 786 Murphy Ave., S.W., AM. 4407.

This is a concern established in 1931 by Bill Tripp, one of the best known and dependable auto mechanics throughout this area, and is still owned and managed by him. The service of his concern is likewise well known to car owners. He is now located in a new and commodious building at 786 Murphy Ave., S. W., built and owned by the concern, having formerly been located at 238 Trinity Ave., S. W., for 11 years.

The service of this concern consists of its ability to take care of all starters, generators, armature winding, and all makes of electrical systems of all cars or trucks. Now in its new location, Mr. Tripp announces that in his modern plant on Murphy Avenue, with a force of trained mechanics on repairing and rebuilding generators, armature winding, servicing starters, and the like, he is now more than ever able to give the finest and most dependable and prompt service to be found anywhere. Mr. Tripp assures patrons of the same prompt, courteous and satisfactory service always rendered by him and his mechanics. His exchange on Murphy Avenue is the only concern of its kind in which he is interested or has any connection in any way. He is giving his entire time and attention to the plant in his new location and being a thorough practical mechanic, inspects and tests every job before it leaves his plant.

In order to make his service just as complete as possible, and to give every convenience to car owners, the Tripp Auto Electric Exchange has added to its line the well-known AC spark plugs and also fuel pumps. These are installed where needed in repair work for motorists or sold as individual accessories when needed.

With Tiny 'Atomeer' You Can Now Get 'Secreteer' Hearing Correction

FOR HARD-OF-HEARING—Here is something apart from a mere apparatus. It is the sensational Maico "Atomeer"—no larger than a spectacle case, among the world's smallest and lightest single unit hearing instruments. Sold by the Maico Hearing Service, Peachtree Arcade. Phone JA. 2457.

Hearing Device Sold in Arcade Gets Acclaim

By PRESS HUDDLESTON

Here is something that every hard-of-hearing man or woman ought to remember: "No sound on earth can ever be any finer than the hearing aid you wear."

So, if you are hard-of-hearing, wouldn't it make you happy to know that you can get a hearing aid—one that could be completely hidden behind a pocket handkerchief—a hearing aid declared to be among the world's smallest and lightest single unit hearing instrument?

That's exactly what you can get at the Maico Hearing Service, 223-25-27 Peachtree Arcade. It is the "Atomeer," a power-packed hearing device, declared to be among the world's smallest and lightest single unit, combining full 30 volts "B" battery power with mercury cell, 1½ volt "A," and five octave frequency range.

And now here is a new announcement concerning the Atomeer:

With the "Atomeer" you can now be furnished with "Secreteer" giving you invisible hearing correction. See advertisement in this Industrial Department.

Maico "Atomeer" is declared to be a sensational development which has startled the hearing aid industry, and is believed to be something apart from a mere apparatus. It is no larger than a spectacle case, has a 5½-ounce transmitter, with full power 30-volt battery. There is no extra battery pack, no battery cord or garments. It is most powerful in its ability to render hearing, and its beauty and style is made up from plastic inlaid with ebony black.

Messrs W. H. McClain, Jr. and J. R. Hunt, owners and managers of the Atlanta concern offering this gift to the hard-of-hearing, remind those so afflicted not to confuse the "Atomeer" with makeshift arrangements of an ordinary type hearing aid transmitter using battery in which full voltage and power is sacrificed to provide small size.

Here are a few of the features of the new "Atomeer":

Wide frequency range to 5,000 cycles, equal to or exceeding any known instrument.

Individual fitting with the scientific accuracy for which Maico is famous in the hearing field.

Smooth, undistorted reproduction without case and cord noises.

All of the above pus revolutionary war-born Mercury cell. A new type of midget battery used with outstanding success in the Pacific, where other batteries failed, for walkie-talkie radios.

Write or call the Maico Hearing Service, in the Peachtree Arcade, JA. 2457 if you wish to know more about this sensational hearing aid.

ZEPHYR AWNINGS MAKE HOME ATTRACTIVE—Above are shown two pretty West End homes on which the Georgia Ventilated Awning Company has recently installed Zephyr awnings. The top home is at 485 Melville Ave.; the bottom, at 587 Lynhaven Dr., just off Stewart Avenue. Write or call the awning company, DE. 3034, if you want estimate and consultation without charge.

Zephyr Awnings for the Coolest Shade in the South

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

And the coolest shade in the South can be within your own home when Zephyr ventilated awnings are installed.

Yes, on hot Summer days Zephyr awnings have a marked cooling effect—a thermo-syphon process. When Zephyr awnings are installed, the interior of a room may be cooled as much as 12 degrees merely by lowering a window a few inches from the top, thereby setting in motion air currents through the awning which pull out the hot air under the ceiling.

But Zephyr awnings do more than cool a home or building. The wide variety of styles and designs make them an attractive addition to most any home, building or commercial establishment. They keep out sun and rain, and yet they do this without darkening interiors, for Zephyr awnings admit a remarkable amount of diffused light, soft and subdued.

Zephyr awnings are patented, and are manufactured and distributed under an exclusive franchise. Each awning is made to fit exactly the window, porch, door or terrace on which it is installed. Zephyr awnings will last as long as your house, but that is no reason why you should wait to begin enjoying them. Their moderate cost can be financed under a budget plan if you wish.

Nationally known, nationally advertised, Zephyr awnings are manufactured and distributed throughout Georgia by the Georgia Ventilated Awning Company. The Company offers estimating and design consultation, without charge. So phone or write the Company today, and very soon your house will become more attractive outside, more comfortable inside—and you will be happier with your home.

WANT U. OF GEORGIA IN SAVANNAH CONTINUED—Members of the Student Welfare Association of the Savannah Division of the University of Georgia launched Saturday what they said would be a State-wide campaign protesting the decision of the Board of Regents to close the institution. The opening rally to muster support for continuation of the Division was held in Macon and here the group is seen in front of the sound truck which was used in carrying their protests to the people. The youths are petitioning names of persons sympathizing with them in preparation for taking their fight to the Regents and to the Governor.

It explains, too, why the problems of city and county government are difficult. The economy of the county is complex. The city is the heart of the county. It provides the market for most of the truck crops, much of the milk, much of the beef, much of all that grows in its long stretch of 75 miles.

It is a tragic fact that these economies often are brought into unnecessary conflict by the political ambitions of men in rival political factions.

Quite obviously since the large city is the heart of both economies, it would mean a better life for all involved, including the thousands of farmers, if an amicable, co-operative association were developed between the two governments. The present trend toward co-operation and consolidation of overlapping agencies is to be commended and encouraged.

You can visit a farm in North Fulton, and then drive by the most direct road to one in South Fulton, and find that your speedometer registers 86 miles. The air-line distance is 75.

The county contains an urban economy and a rural.

It contains the largest concentration of industry and labor unions, and the fourth largest concentration of farms and farm people.

Its County Agent, Sid Truitt, is one of the most able and popular in the State. His job, too, is complex, easily the most difficult of its kind in the State. He must be an expert dairyman. He is. The County Dairy is producing milk as good as that produced by any dairy, and it is cleaner than most of them. None is any cleaner than the one which supplies milk to the county institutions.

He must be an expert in poultry, in cotton, grain and in beef cattle. He must know clovers and grasses, and must keep intimately in touch with developments at the Experiment Stations. It was not surprising that a short while ago Fulton County farmers should have joined in a large testimonial dinner to Sid Truitt.

His job is large; it is complicated by the variety of farming, and by the presence of the two economies—rural and urban.

Agent Truitt's life is complicated, too, by the fact that he gets literally hundreds of calls each month from distressed city dwellers.

A housewife with a flowering bush about which the aphids are buzzing merrily will telephone Mr. Truitt's office and urge that his staff supply her with information and advice on how to rid herself of them.

City ladies who find their boxwood and other shrubs dying because of burrowing pine mice—animals which seem to have been crossed with moles sometime in the past—will call Mr. Truitt's office tearfully and demand a list of poisons, or that Mr. Truitt come out and personally set traps for them.

A back-yard farmer, with 50 cents worth of onion sets, also will demand, and get, advice as to why his vegetable won't grow to the size of the large Spanish onions imported from Texas and the irrigated fields of the West.

Mr. Truitt is slow on poisons; and when he does recommend one designed to destroy the pine mice, he goes out and urges the housewife to keep the poison out in the garage or somewhere outside the house. The human being is a careless animal. A lady in a nearby county once stirred an arsenic preparation for killing tomato bugs into the chicken gravy, because it looked like flour. Only prompt work by the doctors prevented death.

But his chief work, of course, is with the farmers. As County Agent for the fourth largest farm county in the largest State east of the Mississippi—in a county which has a great variety of farming—he is easily the busiest single farm adviser in the State in whatever agency.

Fulton County has a land area of 523 square miles, or 334,720 acres. It is a county of trees, 64 percent of the whole area being in timberland, much of it in pines grown up on old cotton fields of 20 and more years ago.

Of the 334,720 acres, 24.3 percent represents cultivated land. This adds up to 81,000 cultivated acres and 35,826 acres of pasture. This is one of the finest increases in the State, and the county is increasing its pasturage. Many old, worn-out fields are becoming excellent permanent and temporary Winter pastures. The old idea of a pasture was just a field where some grass grew. The modern pasture means rich, lush grasses the year round.

Fulton County's average farm income places the county in sixteenth place. There are 143 farm counties with lower farm incomes. The average in Georgia is $1,361. Fifteen counties have better farm incomes.

Corn is coming up in all of Georgia. Fulton is one of the leaders in hybrid corn, which is the real hope of the future. Georgia cannot compete in corn with the old varieties. But hybrid, with "something under it," will increase.

The county average corn production is a low 13 1-2 bushels per acre. This year it should be up to 15 bushels. An average of 40 bushels is not impossible. Almost 2,000 acres of hybrid corn are out this year; and, riding about the county, I can testify it looks good.

Georgia plants 3,000,000 acres of corn each year. If we can raise the average from 13 1-2 bushels to 40 bushels, the increase will bring in other acres, and we can be indepedent of the corn section, and really make our poultry, pig and cattle business thrive. We can pasture 12 months a year.

It is of more than passing interest that Fulton County, thought of generally as the place where Atlanta is located, is twenty-eighth among the 159 counties in production of wheat, thirty-second in production of barley, thirty-first in production of oats and thirtieth in production of hay, all types.

The value of Atlanta as a market is seen in the fact that the county is seventh in the State in truck vegetable farms, fifth in poultry, third in dairies. Concentration of population makes that possible.

Fulton leads in one great crop. There are more farm girls and boys from Fulton County in 4-H Club work than in any other county. Fulton has 21,071 of Georgia's total of 113,000.

So much for that—the story of the county with the largest city and more farms than any other county save three.

There are some of the greatest farm people of Georgia in Fulton—the same kind of fine people who give to the State a great backlog of strength that I am finding in other counties in this "Report From the Country."

Tuesday we will begin to meet some of them. Then, after a few days of meeting Fulton farmers is completed, we will move out into the State again to report the work of farmers who have done a fine job on their own initiative and with their own work, using no outside income.

Sees Fair From Car

MILAN, Italy, June 29—(AP)—Mrs. Juan D. Peron, wife of Argentina's President, visited the Milan fair Sunday, but the crush of the welcoming throngs was so great that she did not leave her motor car to view the exhibits. It was estimated that 200,000 persons jammed the grounds.

2 Brothers Die in Crash Of Plane on Virginia Farm

LURAY, Va., June 29—(AP)—A 13-year-old boy and his Navy veteran brother were killed Sunday when their plane crashed in a pasture 12 miles Southwest of here and burst into flames.

The bodies of Howard Gray, 20, of Pine Grove, Va., and Lewis Gray were pulled from the burning wreckage shortly after the plane plowed into a field on the farm of Will Weakley.

Crippled Children League Votes for Augusta Building

Officers and trustees of the Crippled Children League of Georgia, Inc., in semiannual session here Sunday, voted to go ahead with plans for a new $250,000 Aidmore building in Augusta with a capacity of 54 children.

J. Clayton Burke, of Atlanta, President, said that following the annual meeting in October, the League will receive bids for the building and that construction will start soon thereafter. Of the $250,000 necessary to complete it, the League has already raised $105,000.

Burke said that the building will be of two stories, with the first floor given over to the children and the second floor to the nurses and to administrative purposes. The building, he said, will be in two wings, one for Negro children. There will be room, he said, for white children and 27 Negro.

Francis M. Daves Associates, of Atlanta, is the architect firm.

Snelson-Stringer Wedding Told

Miss Carolyn Snelson, daughter of Mrs. F. R. Snelson, became the bride of Lawrence Verne Stringer, son of Mrs. Hester Stringer, at a home ceremony recently. Dr. James Middleton officiated, with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Smathers and Mr. Stanley Powell presenting the musical program.

Frank Stringer was his brother's best man, and Cooper Stringer was the groomsman.

Miss Betty Turner was the maid of honor, and the bride's sister, Miss Joanne Snelson, was the bridesmaid. Their dresses were pale pink silk and they carried bouquets of pink roses bordered by blue delphinium.

The pretty bride, given in marriage by her uncle, George W. Jenkins, of Lakeland, Fla., wore a pale blue silk dress, with a blue and white hat and white gloves. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and roses.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Hester Stringer and Mrs. Ernest Miles, of Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. John W. Booth and Mrs. William Leatherwood, of Gainesville, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jenkins and son, of Lake Wales, Fla.; Mrs. Homer C. Nix and Miss Nancy Nix, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Miss Sara Ann Proffitt, of Dalton, and Mrs. G. S. Jones, of Hartsville, S. C.

NEWS ABOUT GEORGIA

Compiled From Constitution State News Reports

By SAM CLARKE

Col. Paschal N. Strong, U. S. District Engineer, has recommended to the Army that it undertake dredging and improvement of the upper Savannah Harbor because all bids of private contractors, he said, were excessive. . . .

Charges of "brutal battery" and "slanderous assault" were brought against a mother and son in Bibb County Superior Court by a woman who alleged the pair entered her home in the absence of her husband and beat her. Mrs. J. C. Turner asked a total of $40,000 on the two counts in a suit filed in Macon against Mrs. Lillie Mae Lightfoot and her son, H. Grady Staples, whom she charges committed the offenses in May.

LaBelle David

C. A. Franchinot, his wife and daughter are en route to Paris and Grenoble, France, for a visit. Franchinot, native of France, came to this country 27 years ago, and for the past 13 years has made his home in Sandersville where he operates a mercantile business and ice cream factory. . . .

Representatives from 14 Counties attended the Claims Institute conducted by Harry Riddel, Atlanta, of the Southeastern Area, American Red Cross, held in the Dublin Red Cross Headquarters . . . There's one Georgia belle whose name fits her newly acquired title. LaBelle David has been selected as "Miss Calhoun" of 1947" and will receive an expense-paid trip to Panama City, Fla., where she will represent Calhoun in the Southeastern Beauty Pageant July 3-6.

Busy Buzzard

Bill Tampas, Valdosta restaurant operator, enjoyed a fishing trip to St. Marks, Fla., but wasn't pleased with what greeted him on the return trip. While he was driving along, probably thinking of the big one that got away, a big, black buzzard swooped down from the sky, and dived into the "shatterproof" windshield of his car. The scavenger, apparently suffering little damage, continued on his flight, but Bills windshield was badly smashed.

Business Bulletins

A Superior Court charter has been granted the Raiford Naval Stores with headquarters in Vidalia . . . Mayor E. L. Darling, of Blackshear, reported that several City improvement and paving projects had been started in Blackshear . . . A Cobb County building permit has been issued to Glenn F. Holcomb for the construction of a $15,000 tourist court on Highway 41E . . . A total of $26,924 was invested in U. S. Savings Bonds by Laurens County citizens during May, John H. Mahoney, Chairman, reported, adding that the figure for the first five months of 1947 was $80,000 more than last year . . . A $20,000 educational annex is in prospect for the St. Paul Methodist Church in Gainesville.

Names in the News

J. C. Arant is the new Dooly County FHA Supervisor . . . Dr. G. F. McCarty, Veterinarian, formerly of Knoxville, Tenn., has opened an office at the Planter's Warehouse, in Ocilla . . . The Rev. Pierce Harris, Pastor of the First Methodist Church of Atlanta, will lead revival services at the Gainesville Methodist Church today through Friday . . . Sgt. Thacker S. Scales, of Buford, has been assigned to the Military Department of GMC at Milledgeville to replace Sgt. Omar H. Wooten, who died last week . . . The new Superintendent of the Wrightsville schools will be B. G. Walker.

Super Salesman?

Lawrence Tomkins, Vice President of the Duncan Meter Corporation, sold the City of Savannah a system of parking meters. The City installed them and began a crackdown on overtime parking. Among the 21 first-day violators who paid $1 each was Salesman Lawrence Tomkins.

News and Notes

The Waycross Pilot Club has voted to assist some graduate of the Waycross High School with expenses at college next year . . . The drop in prices of cantaloups and tomatoes at the Valdosta State Farmers' Market was attributed to the recent rainy weather . . . Dr. Steve Kenyon, Atlanta, President of the Georgia Medical Association, outlined an ambitious program for members of the group at a meeting of the Sixth District Medical Society at the U. S. Naval Hospital in Dublin . . . Stanley Jones, Macon, State Adjutant of the American Legion, will be the principal speaker at exercises of the Putnam Post No. 19 to be held in Eatonton Tuesday.

Truck Pins Driver Hour

MACON, June 29—An unidentified driver of a highway express truck remained pinned beneath the wreckage of his huge vehicle for more than an hour Sunday night after it got out of control on a long hill and rolled down an embankment in downtown Macon.

City police, firemen and operators of several commercial wreckers worked desperately to release the man, whose legs were pinned down by the overturned truck.

Their efforts attracted a huge crowd and firemen had to disperse them with water hoses.

The driver remained conscious all during the long ordeal to free him and hypodermics were administered to allay his pain.

Police reported that once he was released his injuries appeared to be slight.

Japan 'Peace Festival'

TOKYO, Monday, June 30—(AP) The News Agency Kyodo reported today that the city of Hiroshima is planning a three-day "peace festival" to mark the third anniversary of its atom-bombings, Aug. 6. The prefectural governor is expected to invite Emperor Hirohito to attend.

ELIZABETH WOODWARD SAYS:

Learn To Take Criticism With Adult Attitude

Of course, you couldn't be wrong! Though at times it's hard for you to see that you're out of order. You always have such air-tight alibis . . . such logical reasons for doing the things you do. That anyone would object or find fault with your behavior is beyond you!

You get carried away with doing exactly as you please . . . it's your way of doing things . . . and you really don't like to be disputed. You just can't bear criticism. And you bristle when anyone tells you off.

EQUALLY GUILTY

Boys are frequent offenders. Usually girls, when criticized, shrivel up inside and go quiet as clams. They don't like the censure or disapproval of anybody. They, on the whole, want everybody to like them. They're quite sensitive on the subject. Of course there are some girls who brazen things out. They don't care what people think of them or at least they say they don't.

But call a lad down for driving too fast or too recklessly . . . and he's just as likely to lift your back hair with demonstrations of "just watch this!" And around the corner you go on a wheel and a prayer.

Ask some boys to pipe down in the movies . . . and they respond "Oh yeah?" And proceed to accompany the picture with hoots, catcalls and various sound effects not already written into the script.

Call a boy down for bad manners . . . and he's just as apt to cover up his ignorance or his thoughtlessness with bragging, strutting and even more bad manners.

Tell some lads it's not fair to tease quite so vigorously . . . and they'll laugh in your face. It's a good game from their point of view. It's too bad everybody can't get as much fun out of their razzing as they do!

Some girls will see the error of their ways at once and will set out to mend theirs. Other girls will agree with you . . . just to get the scolding over with . . . and as soon as your back is turned . . . continue with the same old mischief.

Girls and boys are equally guilty . . . when it comes to talking back to criticism. You don't like to feel like a child who must be corrected. You figure you're grown up . . . you should be allowed to do things your own way. You should be permitted to be "personalities" like grownups are.

WELL, THEN . . .

Why not act grownup about it? Adults hear criticism often. They do things that offend . . . they disturb the public peace . . . they tread on the tenderest sensibilities of their friends and relations. But unless an adult is not grown up . . . he doesn't bristle when reminded that he's out of line. He backtracks fast with apologies. He realizes he has a right to only his share of the living space. And when he oversteps the bounds . . . even unintentionally . . . other people have a right to squawk.

You don't really mean to offend. You just don't like to be reminded that you're offensive! When someone else is sufficiently moved to care about the impression you're making . . . why not be grateful . . . and gracious about it?

This demure frock from "Gone With the Wind," which is making its reappearance in Atlanta this week, would be just as appropriate at a Summer dance today as it was in Scarlett O'Hara's time. The voluminous skirt is of white organdy ruffles edged with double rows of white lace and the bodice is tightly fitted, made almost entirely of bands of the lace. A row of tiny buttons close the front of the bodice from the narrow, upstanding collar to the waist, which is accented with a bright green grosgrain belt. WINIFRED WARE, Fashion Editor.

Mail Train Robbed

HAVANA, June 29—(AP)—Four masked men stole several bags of certified mail from a Central Railway train Sunday after binding and gagging the mail clerks. Police said the robbers might have been after a $1,000,000 pay roll which arrived safely a few days ago.

LOOKING AHEAD

By LOUIS WOLFE

There's Many A Slip With A Sweet Smack

By IDA JEAN KAIN

It's time to check up on Minnie the Muncher. After all, she's the leading lady in our Summer slimming series. Minnie is past pleasingly plump and simply can't understand it. She hasn't much appetite for meals, particularly in hot weather. Naturally between meals she feels the need of a little something to munch on . . . to take her mind off the weather. You know how it is . . .

Or do you? It takes a very honest type of person to see that she is at all like Minnie, or even to wake up to the fact that often and little eating can add up to more than a little excess weight. Get out the calorie chart and check on the tidbits. It's astonishing how they mount up . . . and up.

Of course, our Minnie is a trifle exaggerated. But, if you like a snack in the middle of the morning, "just a little something," perhaps the leftover toast, retoasted and a bit more butter added, or that lone doughnut. And then about 4 o'clock a sweet "just to tide you over until dinner." And before retiring, "light refreshments." There's a conservative 600 calories.

There are two ways to go about breaking the habit. One is to take a firm stand and make up your mind to stop eating between meals. Keep a diet-diary for a week, mark down everything eaten. Another plan is to be somewhere else at those hours, and too busy to think about food. Change your routine. People with absorbing interests do not think about eating between meals.

Back up this plan by eating a bit more at meals . . . more of the protective foods that lead to better food habits and normal weight, then you won't crave between meal snacks, once you break the habit. Three days can break it.

As our reducer who took off 96 pounds reported, it is always wise to plan the meals well ahead of time, and have the foods on hand, otherwise the tendency is to grab anything to satisfy hunger. She says that once you "set your mind against nibbling, there is no temptation.

Well, here's a promise, if you will "set your mind" and stop nibbling at the start of a Summer, you can be ten pounds lighter by Fall, without actually going on a diet. It's easier to lose weight in Summer when light fare satisfies, but it is also easy to eat Summertime snacks far beyond your calorie needs.

If you do not have the "Complete Calorie Chart," send a long, self-addressed envelope with three cents in coin or stamps to cover cost of mailing.

Miss Lively Weds E. R. Rohrer

The chapel of the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist Church formed the setting recently for the marriage of Miss Elsie G. Lively and Emerson Richard Rohrer. Dr. Monroe Swilley, Jr., officiated. Mrs. Charles Chalmers was organist, and Roy Berry, soloist.

The best man was Robert H. Rohrer and the ushers were the bride's brother, Carlos J. Lively, Jr., and Charles P. Adams.

The maid of honor, Miss Nancy Schettler and the matron of honor, Mrs. Robert Rohrer, wore pink lace made with full net skirts and they carried garden flowers.

The bride's gown of white satin was made princess style with a yoke of Chantilly lace and a long train. The two-tiered veil of illusion was attached to a heart-shaped Chantilly lace hat. She carried gardenias and swainsona and wore a string of pearls, gift of the groom.

Mrs. Lively wore light blue crepe and pink roses. Mrs. Rohrer was attired in gray sheer and her flowers were pink sweet peas.

A small reception for out-of-town guests and relatives was held at the home of the bride. Assisting were Mrs. E. L. Emery, Mrs. T. L. Hoshall, Jr., and Mrs. W. Wolff. Mrs. James Redd kept the bride's book.

Out-of-town guests were Miss Christiana Arnold and Miss Elsie Arnold, Brooklyn, N. Y.; E. F. Arnold, Montgomery, Ala.; Mrs. W. Glenn Hicks, Miss Scott Hoskins, Mrs. Kate Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stokes, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Schettler, of Knoxville, Tennessee.

The bride traveled in a pink suit and white accessories. After a honeymoon in Florida the couple will reside at Emory University.

Mrs. Stillwell, SA Pioneer, Succumbs

Lt. Col. Mrs. Mary Stillwell, 85, one of the Salvation Army's pioneer officers, died at the home of her daughter, Lt. Col. Mrs. John A. Morrison, 1820 Meadowdale Ave., N. E., late Saturday night. Funeral arrangements will be announced.

Lt. Col. Stillwell, who was born the daughter of a British Regular Army officer in Corfu, Greece, was one of the oldest Salvation Army officers by years of services in the United States. She was commissioned at the London Training College in 1881 and was sent to the United States by Gen. William Booth in 1884 to organize activities on the West Coast. Her headquarters was in San Francisco.

She and her husband, the late Brig. Henry Stillwell, held many administrative and executive positions in the Western and Southwestern States. In 1900, while assigned in New York City, they had charge of rural communities throughout the United States.

Her next appointment was to Chicago in 1908, where she was placed in command of the Women's Social Service activities in the mid-Central States. She retained this position until 1920 and received national recognition as an authority in the field of social science.

In 1924, Col. Stillwell retired from active duty. She lived for the past eight years in Atlanta.

Her daughter is the wife of Lt. Col. John A. Morrison, Dixie Divisional Commander.

She is also survived by three sons, Brig. Harry Stillwell, of San Francisco; James Stillwell, of Butler, N. J.; Fred Stillwell, of Dallas, Texas, and a half-brother, James Murch, of Maybrook, N. Y.

Fort Mac Guns To Boom In July 4th Observances

By ANN WOOD

Listen for a big noise.

Fort McPherson's guns will boom out 48 times for the States of the Nation at high noon Friday, saluting the independence and freedom first announced on a Midsummer day of 1776.

McPherson plans a large holiday schedule, including open house for the public, a baseball game in the afternoon and a formal Retreat formation. Flags of all the United Nations will be displayed.

All regular Post activities, except necessary maintenance and security details, will be suspended.

The Lady Leathernecks of Atlanta have organized the first Volunteer Marine Corps Reserve Training Unit in the Southeast. Capt. Christine Wyatt is supervising the organization.

The veteran women Marines must meet at least eight times annually to train in the latest administrative techniques in order to be ready for active duty in case of emergency.

Capt. Andrew R. Bergstrom, USMCR (inactive), of 929 Waverly Way, N. E., has been appointed Volunteer Marine Corps Reserve Recruiting Officer for Atlanta.

A student at Emory University, Bergstrom can effect enlistments in the Volunteer Marine Corps Reserve for Marine veterans.

By Lichty

"After the down payment, you only pay $70 a month for 30 years, besides taxes, insurance and upkeep—that's a lot better than just paying rent, isn't it?"

3,000 See Marine Ace Stunt At Air Station's Open House

At least 3,000 persons attended the Naval Air Station's Open House Sunday to watch the precision flying of Col. Marion E. Carl, 19-plane Marine ace and a hero of Guadalcanal.

Col. Carl, senior test pilot for the Marines, flew in a Bearcat F8F, the Navy's latest fighter plane.

Other features of the first anniversary celebration of the Navy Air Corps reserve program included a demonstration of Georgia's first ground-control approach unit, a navigation aid to planes in bad weather. A Navy Air Station stunt team demonstrated fleet carrier landings.

Eight Atlantans were picked from the crowd for free rides over the city.

A. P. Cornett Dies; Funeral Tuesday

Albert Phillip Cornett, 44, of 1907 Baker Rd., N. W., a carpentry superintendent for the Capitol Construction Company, died Sunday in a private hospital after a long illness.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a. m. Tuesday in the Fortified Hills Baptist Church, with the Rev. J. C. Daniel officiating. Burial will be in Crest Lawn Cemetery.

ASHBY STAIRS OUT

Bombing Echoes Housing Crisis

Detectives J. E. Nelms and B. G. Holland are investigating the bombing early Sunday of a house at 361 Ashby Street, S. W., at the corner of Sells Avenue.

The house stands in the same vicinity in which there were several bombings several months ago during the Columbians' outbreak. In the latest bombing, the explosion blew out the stairway of the house.

The owner-occupant of the Ashby Street house is a white man, but Negroes are rapidly acquiring homes in the neighborhood. Police said this housing situation was behind the bombings some months ago.

R. F. McRae, 73, Iron Pioneer, Dies

Richard Franklin McRae, 73, of 425 Lee St., S. W., former Vice President and Treasurer of the Lombard Iron Works in Augusta, died Sunday at his residence after a short illness.

Funeral services will be conducted in Crawfordville today.

Mr. McRae had been a resident of Atlanta about 12 years, and was employed here by the Rosenfeld Company. He retired five years ago.

Born in Oconee County, Mr. McRae lived most of his life near Augusta. In Atlanta, he was active in the Gordon Street Presbyterian Church, in which he was an elder.

J.I.Chaney,Sr., Churchman, Dies at 59

J. I. Chaney, Sr., 59, of 1433 Glenwood Ave., S. E., a leader and teacher in the Park Avenue Baptist Church for many years, died Sunday while attending services there.

Friends and relatives said Mr. Chaney was sitting quietly during a memorial service, at which the portrait of a former teacher was being illuminated. As the light over the portrait went on, Mr. Chaney's head sank to his chest. He died within a few moments.

Mr. Chaney, a well-known and successful contracting painter, was one of the foremost members of the church. He had served as Vice Chairman and Acting Chairman of the Building Committee when the church was erected.

During 30 years of devotion to the religious life of the community Mr. Chaney served 10 years as Chairman of the Church Finance Committee. He was also a Trustee of the Church and a former Superintendent of Adult Department of the Sunday School.

At the time of his death he was teacher of the Baraca Class for adults and was a member of the Board of Deacons.

Mr. Chaney's occupation had brought him into contact with many of Atlanta's largest business organizations, for whom he contracted interior painting.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Lottie Chambers, of Atlanta; two daughters, Mrs. R. D. Walker and Mrs. H. J. Cornett, both of Atlanta; three sons, J. I. Chaney, Jr., and W. R. Chaney, of Atlanta, and C. C. Chaney, of Tampa, Fla.; two sisters, Mrs. J. C. Lingle and Mrs. Evander Griffin, of Monroe, N. C., and three brothers, Stanley and Clegg Chaney, of Monroe, and Victor Chaney, of Washington, D. C.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Miss Lively Weds E. R. Rohrer

The chapel of the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist Church formed the setting recently for the marriage of Miss Elsie G. Lively and Emerson Richard Rohrer. Dr. Monroe Swilley, Jr., officiated. Mrs. Charles Chalmers was organist, and Roy Berry, soloist.

The best man was Robert H. Rohrer and the ushers were the bride's brother, Carlos J. Lively, Jr., and Charles P. Adams.

The maid of honor, Miss Nancy Schettler and the matron of honor, Mrs. Robert Rohrer, wore pink lace made with full net skirts and they carried garden flowers.

The bride's gown of white satin was made princess style with a yoke of Chantilly lace and a long train. The two-tiered veil of illusion was attached to a heart-shaped Chantilly lace hat. She carried gardenias and swainsona and wore a string of pearls, gift of the groom.

Mrs. Lively wore light blue crepe and pink roses. Mrs. Rohrer was attired in gray sheer and her flowers were pink sweet peas.

A small reception for out-of-town guests and relatives was held at the home of the bride. Assisting were Mrs. E. L. Emery, Mrs. T. L. Hoshall, Jr., and Mrs. W. Wolff. Mrs. James Redd kept the bride's book.

Out-of-town guests were Miss Christiana Arnold and Miss Elsie Arnold, Brooklyn, N. Y.; E. F. Arnold, Montgomery, Ala.; Mrs. W. Glenn Hicks, Miss Scott Hoskins, Mrs. Kate Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stokes, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Schettler, of Knoxville, Tennessee.

The bride traveled in a pink suit and white accessories. After a honeymoon in Florida the couple will reside at Emory University.

Miss Dorothy Keith Weds E. G. Stockwell

Miss Dorothy Fay Keith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Keith, was married on Saturday to Elman G. Sockwell at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Bryant, on Lakewood Avenue. Dr. Hersheal Ford officiated. Miss Barbara Barnett was pianist and Mrs. J. H. Sleigh, soloist. Charles Shaw was best man.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore ivory satin. Her fingertip veil was attached to a coronet of pearls, and she carried a white prayer book with marker of white orchids and swainsona.

A reception followed. Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Barnett, of Jacksonville, were among the out-of-town guests.

Popular Couple Announce Plans

Plans have been completed for the marriage of Miss Betsy Stockbridge and Eric Guy Hope, Jr., which will be an interesting event of Thursday afternoon.

The ceremony takes place at 5:30 p. m. at the Druid Hills Baptist Church, with Dr. Louie Newton officiating. Music will be presented by Mrs. Haskel Boyter and Frank Soule. Miss Stockbridge, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Stockbridge, will be given in marriage by her father, and her sister, Mrs. William J. Harkins will be the matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. D. L. Stockbridge, Jr., Mrs. Leslie Anderson and Miss Dorothy Doss.

Thomas Lang will be the best man and the usher groomsmen will be D. L. Stockbridge, Jr., brother of the bride-elect; Dave Freeman, of Phenix City, Ala., and Dudley Dickson.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Stockbridge will entertain the bridal couple at an informal buffet supper at their home on Ponce de Leon Ave.

COUNTY SUPERVISOR—Due to large expansion program now underway, I have transferred my division headquarters to Atlanta. We must, right away, train men for county supervision throughout Georgia and North and South Carolina. Our service is educational and is in great demand. One national advertisement alone brought in over 2,000 leads from Georgia; 1,500 from South Carolina. Our men work on qualified leads entirely. No canvassing, no callbacks. You are trained by local state manager in the field. Earnings from $125 to $200 weekly. Your earnings start at once. You must be over 30, have good sales background and have a car. Personal interviews only, Monday and Tuesday between 10 a. m. and 1 p. m. Ask for L. J. Thibodeau, Division Manager, 1103-4 William-Oliver Bldg., Atlanta. Out-of-town men write for personal interviews only.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF THE UNITED STATES
WILL appoint two salesmen to work in Georgia. The work is permanent and will be fully discussed in an interview in Atlanta. A car is essential. The successful applicants will be given a course of field training; on a SALARY of $70 per week, plus commission. Liberal commission and bonus arrangement thereafter. For appointment, telephone Laurence M. Mathieu, at the Hotel Biltmore, in Atlanta, between 8 and 10 o'clock tonight.

WE'RE just pointing out that it doesn't make good sense to buy a used car from anyone you're not absolutely sure of. You've probably heard it said that a used car is as good as the reputation of the dealer who sells it.
IF YOU buy on that basis you'll be around to see us sooner or later—'cause we're proud of both our reputation AND our used cars!

Macon Man Meets With 'Townsend'

By LORRAINE NELSON
Constitution Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 29—H. L. Dyer, of Macon, was one of several thousand supporters of the Townsend Pension Plan convening here to campaign anew this week for the old-age pension plan which Dr. F. E. Townsend originated during the depression years.

Appearing to testify before the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee in support of proposed amendments to the Federal Power Act were William P. Hammond, Vice President and Chief Engineer of the Georgia Power Company; and Harllee Branch, Jr., counsel for the Power Company. The amendments they favored are sponsored by Rep. William Miller, Connecticut Republican, and would redefine navigable streams under the Act to mean only those streams and all parts of which are actually navigable, as well as redefine the meaning of interstate commerce in utilities.

Also in Washington were Charles Bloch, of Macon; Spence Grayson, of Savannah, who is an ex-State Senator from the First District; Mark Smith, of Macon, and R. E. Hood, of Brunswick, State Superintendents of Schools in Bibb and Glynn Counties, respectively; C. E. Gammage, of Atlanta—he's in the steel business; W. Frank Richards, of Decatur; and Robert S. Sams, of Atlanta.

Donald Hastings, President of the Hastings Seed Company, of Atlanta, appeared before the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee hearing testimony on the Agriculture Appropriation Bill, to urge more funds for soil conservation. Paul Schoen, Executive Secretary of the Forest Farmers' Association, of Valdosta, also before that Subcommittee, supported more money for forestry development and conservation.

Herbert L. Kayton and George C. Hayward, officials of the Federal Public Housing Authority, in Savannah, visited Washington on business.

Rent Decision Slated Today

WASHINGTON, June 29—(UP) Congress is looking for President Truman's approval Monday of its controversial bill to extend Federal rent control until next March 1 allowing landlords and tenants to agree on a 15 percent increase now.

But leaders in both the Senate and House woudn't be surprised if Mr. Truman criticized the lawmakers for passing the measure and sending it to him just under the deadline. Existing controls expire at midnight.

If the President vetoes it, controls will go out the window altogether. Congress has shown no signs of being willing to ram through another plan with adjournment only a month away.

Coal Picture Brighter As Settlement Hinted

WASHINGTON, June 29—(AP)—A drive to prevent another nation-wide coal strike July 8 by a reported offer of a 35-cents-an-hour wage boost led the industry Sunday into a critical week. Contract talks are expected to get going in earnest.

Hopes were aroused the strike may be at least held to a brief duration. The wage offer was reported to have the support of U. S. Steel and Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Company after a conference with John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers.

Industry sources said other Northern and Western operators have decided to go along with the plan, to meet fully with Lewis' basic wage and hour demands. However, the operators were out of town and confirmation of this awaited their return Monday.

Should Lewis put across his demands for higher wages and hour changes, a number of other major issues still would remain to be settled by negotiation.

The Government will return the soft coal mines to their owners Monday after running them since May, 1946, when they were seized to avert a strike. At the same time, the contract between Lewis and Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug will expire.

Thus the 400,000 miners, now on vacation until July 8, would have no working agreement—and would not go back to the pits—unless one is reached within the next few days.

Labor Secretary Lewis B. Schwellenbach is expected to call for resumption of negotiations probably Tuesday. Lewis will accept this invitation, an aide said.

Labor Department officials spoke hopefully of reaching a contract this week, at least covering the Northern and Western fields representing 75 percent of the industry. Southern operators have decided to make a separate deal.

The Lewis wage and hour terms call for $13.05 for an eight-hour, portal to portal day. The present contract specified $11.85 for a nine-hour day. The proposal to meet these demands would offer a contract to April 1, 1949.

Lewis was reported to have met informally Friday with heads of the two powerful companies—Benjamin F. Fairless, President of the United States Steel Corporation, and George M. Humphrey, Chairman of the Pittsburgh Coal Firm.

Persons in touch with negotiators said the two company leaders then advised other operators' representatives that an offer would have to be made covering the Lewis wage-hour proposals. Other UMW demands include an increase in the welfare fund from five cents to 10 cents a ton, more overtime payments and six paid holidays.

Truman Asks U. S. 'Guards' On Civil Rights

WASHINGTON, June 29—(UP) Standing on the steps of the famed Lincoln Memorial, President Truman Sunday exhorted the nations of the world to adopt an international bill of rights and strive to prove the superiority of democracy over totalitarianism.

Addressing the 38th annual conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, he warned that war-ravaged peoples abroad "may surrender to the false security offered so temptingly by totalitarian regimes unless we can prove the superiority of democracy."

His words were broadcast to the nation over the four major radio networks and to all other countries by a shortwave set up especially arranged by the State Department.

Mr. Truman decried racial prejudice and discrimination and pledged that the Federal Government "would show the way" to backward states and communities which fail to safeguard the rights of all Americans.

The President said there was much that State and local Governments can do to protect American citizens from "the indignity of insult, the harrowing fear of intimidation, and . . . the threat of physical injury and mob violence."

"But," he added, "we cannot, any longer, await the growth of a will to action in the slowest State or the most backward community. Our National Government must show the way."

He acknowledged that this was a "difficult and complex" problem and said that federal laws and administrative machinery must be improved and expanded.

Other speakers were Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Sen. Morse, Republican, Oregon.

U. S. Surplus Falls Short Of Coolidge's

WASHINGTON, June 29—(AP)—President Truman has the first budget surplus in 17 years in the bag for the fiscal year ending Monday midnight.

But officials said Sunday that an interest payment to be made on the national debt will keep it below the $1,250,000,000 Mr. Truman forecast two months ago—and wreck his chances to beat the record surplus of $1,155,000,000 under President Coolidge exactly 20 years ago.

Government budget experts, in an interview, summarized the situation like this:

On the basis of the latest figures received by the Treasury, the budget surplus—which means the excess of income over spending—was $1,142,925,000 with five days to go.

But instead of climbing, the surplus will be driven down on the final day of the fiscal year by an interest payment on the $257,700,000,000 debt that will take more than $500,000,000.

The impact may drop the final surplus below $1,000,000,000, even though the payment on the debt will be offset in part by further recordings of revenue from quarterly income taxes that fell due June 16.

The final figures will not be compiled until Wednesday.

Latest Government reports show that with five days to go, Government receipts for the 12 months were $517,000,000 short of the $42,500,000,000 the President estimated in April, while expenditures were $410,000,000 under his estimate of $41,250,000,000.

Car Accidents Injure 5 Here

Two persons were injured seriously and three others suffered bruises and lacerations as the result of two automobile accidents in Atlanta early Sunday.

One accident happened at Ontario Road and South Gordon Street, S. W., when a car driven by Buster Gibby, 18, of Route 2, College Park, crashed into a tree.

Gibby is in Grady Hospital suffering from an injured back and a fractured left arm. Three passengers in his car received lacerations and bruises. They are: Earline McGee, 15, of 405 Venetian Dr., S. W.; Robert Atkinson, 21, of 736 Park Street, S. W., and Donald S. Earwood, 16, of 825 Brookline St., S. W.

In the second accident, a car driven by Robert Livesey, 23, of 3090 Alston Dr., N. E., sideswiped a parked car on Moreland Avenue, S. W., and then ran into the yard at 606 Moreland Ave. Livesey was unhurt. But a passenger in the car, Roy A. Dobbs, 23, of Route 2, Decatur, received a compound fracture of the skull and is now in a serious condition at Grady Hospital.

Police made no case in either accident.

Poles Kill 406 'Nazi' Ukrainians

WARSAW, June 29—(AP)—The Government announced Sunday 406 Ukrainian Nationalists had been killed in a drive by the Polish Internal Security Corps to rid Southeastern Poland of anti-government underground bands.

Unofficial reports said a total of 2,000 Ukrainians had been killed, wounded, or captured. The Ukrainians, entrenched in bunkers in wooded areas, have been battling the Security forces with machine-guns, grenades and mortars.

Hundreds were reported captured in the liquidation of six big Ukrainian groups by the Security Corps, aided by regular troops. Army planes were used to spot the underground groups' hideouts.

The official announcement said that six Ukrainians responsible for the assassination of Gen. Karol Swierczewski were among those captured during the last three months in operations in the Lublin and Krakow districts and at Rzeszow, near the Czechoslovak and Russian frontiers. Swierczewski, Vice Minister of Defense, was machine-gunned to death while inspecting military outposts in Southeastern Poland March 28

The Security forces declared the Ukrainians were supported by Fascist remnants of underground bands trained in Munich and led by ex-Nazi SS officers. Military courts have been passing death sentences on those captured.

Non-Coms To Regain Ranks With Guard

SAVANNAH, June 29—(AP)—Men who held non-commissioned grades in the Army Ground Forces during the war may expect to regain their old ranks in ground units of the new Georgia National Guard if they enlist before Jan. 1, 1948.

This was announced here Sunday by Adj. Gen. Alpha A. Fowler. All enlistments, Gen. Fowler explained, are made in the grade of private, but "it will be the policy of the Georgia National Guard to advance former non-coms to their old grades promptly."

The Adjutant General also said that members of the Army's enlisted reserves are permitted to enlist in the National Guard and, in Georgia, will be advanced to their highest war-time rating in ground units.

Film Dress Designer Is Found Drowned

HOLLYWOOD, June 29—(UP) Mrs. Vera West, 47, film studio dress designer for many wears, was found drowned Sunday in the swimming pool of her home and two notes she left said she was tired of being "blackmailed."

Her body, clothed in a night gown, was found floating in the swimming pool by Robert T. Landry, photographer who lived in the guest house.

Mrs. West was head designer for Universal Studio until she left there recently after being with the studio since 1926. During recent months she was a dress designer at a hotel.

The notes, found in her bedroom, read:

"This is the only way. I am tired of being blackmailed."

"Fortune teller told me there was only one way to avoid blackmail I have paid for 23 years—death," read the other note.

Chinese Hosiery Workers Want Union Chief Freed

SHANGHAI, Monday, June 30 (AP)—About 1,000 persons, mostly women, staged an all-day demonstration in front of City Government buildings Sunday, demanding the release of Keh Fang-Yung, leader of the Hosiery workers' union, who, they said, had been kidnaped by unidentified men.

There was no explanation, but the demonstrations suggested that Keh's followers believed authorities either were insufficiently active or knew something of his disappearance.

Warrant Names China Red Chief

NANKING, Monday, June 30—(AP)—The Chinese National Government bulletin Sunday published a mandate for the arrest of Mao Tse-Tung, Chinese Communist chief.

The official bulletin said the high court of Kiangsu Province had requested his detention on grounds that he "originated an illegal party and started an all-out revolt intended to overthrow the Government."

It said this complaint was approved by the National Government, which had directed the Supreme Court to issue a writ for his arrest.

It is unlikely that the writ ever will be served, as Mao is safely within Communist-held territory.
